

THE VERY FIRST play of the 1980 football season proved to be spectacular for the Glades Central High School Friday night when Raider speedster Jessie Hester (42) snagged a halfback pass from Jacob Rhames and streaked into the John I. Leonard end zone standing up for a score before nine seconds had elapsed on the clock. The Raiders went on to win, 34-7, joining Glades Day School in the Glades area winner's circle for high school football while Christian Day and Pahokee High Schools fell in their first games of the season. For the full stories and more pictures, see the spots page.

Alcohol plant is backed

By Dean Jones

BELLE GLADE — Members of the Budget and Policy Advisory Committee (B&PAC) for the Glades agreed Monday night to back the concept of an alcohol plant that would dispose of garbage and trash for the Glades with no tipping fees involved. Committee member Tom Altman moved that the committee should back the concept of the plant while expressing concern the proposal presented to the B&PAC Monday was considerably different from a proposal made a month ago and the company isn't as ready to go with the plant as had been thought.

The proposal made last month by Municipal Energy Consultants (MEC) representative Kenneth F. MacAlpin was that his company would take all the garbage and trash generated in the area, including more brought in from outside the Glades, at no cost and would use it to manufacture methane gas and methyl alcohol to be used as a fuel.

MacAlpin indicated at that time that MEC was in the process of obtaining a U.S. Department of Energy (DOE) grant to build the plant.

Tandy Easley spoke for MEC Monday and said the first step would be to ask for funds to conduct a feasibility study with DOE funds, then to apply for the DOE grant to build the plant.

"What you're saying now," B&PAC Chairman Bill Bailey said, "is that you have an idea and you want to get government funding to see if it'll work. It seems to me there's not much difference between this and the other proposal. They may be way ahead of you."

Bailey was referring to a proposal by B&W Energy Systems, Inc. of New York to dispose of the area's garbage and trash at a cost of $20 a ton. That system is expected to yield a form of fuel equivalent to diesel fuel and the area would receive rebates on the tipping charges based on the revenues from selling the fuel.

"There's a lot of changes in the MEC proposal," Committee member Tom Altman said. He said he was unhappy about the necessity for a request for the feasibility study and said he, for one, would want some kind of assurance the system would work, particularly in consideration of the delays which will be caused by that necessity.

When MacAlpin made his proposal last month, he estimated the system could be on line in two years. According to Easley's proposal Monday, the system would be operational no earlier than August 1983 and very possibly as late as March 1984.

Easley said he felt sure the system would be facilitated by the support of the Solid Waste Authority when MEC makes its applications to the DOE. He also said the B&PAC should receive some assurances that the DOE would have confidence the system would work if the feasibility study is funded.

On the other hand, he said he doesn't believe anyone involved would have full confidence in the system without the feasibility study. He said, however, the system will work and will be built somewhere, although MEC still doesn't have enough technical and economic data to prove it.

Easley estimated it would take from three to six months for each of three steps, including the time required to get funding for the feasibility study, the time for the feasibility study itself and the time after that to get funding for the project.

He said a late start on construction would be March 1982 and an early start, with nine months for all the first three steps, would be August 1981.

Altman said he wouldn't mind a delay of nine

Belle Glade may do own census

BELLE GLADE—City Commissioners decided during a workshop Monday night to explore the idea of conducting their own sampling of the city's population after expressing disagreement over the latest 1980 census figures.

City Planner Joe Fay said the latest report, referred to as the 1980 Census revised unofficial preliminary figures, indicates the Bureau of the Census has upped the city's estimated population from 11,470 to 13,297, a figure still considered to be too low.

Fay said he had protested the figures in several of the census districts in the city as being too low and the latest figures revised upward the figures in some of those districts but the list of districts under protest wasn't complete.

He said Tuesday he had telephoned the Atlanta office that morning and had been advised by an official in the Census Bureau office, that a notation on the revised list indicated that the entire city had been re-censused.

Fay said the matter was complicated because the West Palm Beach Census office has been closed and he had received no warning. He said he contacted Congressman Dan Mica's office in his efforts to contact Luciano Martinez, the area director.

When commissioners asked Fay if the city could conduct its own census, Bill Grissom of Adley and Associates, who was on hand for other business, said a full census by the city isn't necessary, that the city could conduct a sampling of approximately 30 per cent of the city and use the figures from that sample to protest the official census and possibly get a new count.

Grissom was authorized to come before the commission Monday night during the commission's regular meeting with a proposal for such a study.

In other business, the commission: —Authorized Adley and Associates to work up the Community Development Block Grant application for the coming year. The block grant money for the coming year will be used mainly for sewer and street work on Southwest First, Second and Third Streets, including opening Avenue F and work on sewer lift station 11.

—Agreed to sell two city-owned bulldozers at the municipal landfill to the Solid Waste Authority for $40,000.

The commissioners also agreed to allow the Authority to use the city's wash rack, for a fee, to clean the bulldozers and the trucks which will be hauling garbage and trash to the Lantana landfill and to perform, for a fee, maintenance on the trucks and dozers.

—Agreed to a request by Public Works Director Ron Sigmon to lower the speed limit on South Canal Street from the Chosen Bridge to the landfill in anticipation of the heavier truck traffic expected there after the transfer station opens into operation Nov. 1.

—Learned the Southeast Avenue G sewer rehabilitation project is underway. In the project, the sewer lines from South Main to Gove Elementary School will be grouted. It is expected to take four weeks.

—Directed Acting City Manager Frank Anderson and City Attorney John Baker to research the agreement the city made several years ago with the county on the two governments' respective responsibilities on animal control. The research was directed in the wake of several complaints that several dogs were picked up without authorization in the northeast section of town.

—Declined a request from Christian Day School to use the bleachers at Airport Park for the school's home football games.

—Heard a request by Lake Shore Middle School to use the Lake Shore swimming pool for an extended period of time so the school can field a swimming team.

The commissioners agreed with Anderson's recommendation to grant the request if the school agrees to pay the entire cost of keeping the pool open. City Recreation Director Johnny Rutledge was directed to find just what that cost

South Bay buys new fire engine

SOUTH BAY—The city commission decided Tuesday night to buy a new fire truck as an emergency purchase to replace the city's front line engine which was wrecked two weeks ago when it rolled over at the city garage.

The commissioners agreed to buy the truck on a seven-year lease purchase agreement. The price of the engine was set at $47,500, with a down payment of $3,000 the city will have to pay after insurance claims on the old truck and $5,000 being paid by the company which is selling the new engine.

The new engine was manufactured by FMC (Food Machinery Corporation) of South Bay, Ind. and sold to the city by Harold Sales & Service of Marietta, Ga. Fire Chief James Webber was to fly to Nashville to pick up the engine today.

Gary Abbe, sales representative for Harold Sales and Service, said the new engine would have a 1,000 gallon a minute pump and a 750 gallon tank, giving it a 250 gallon advantage over the city's old engine in both areas.

Abbe said the lease purchase agreement includes a feature under which the 7 per cent simple interest is calculated on each of the seven payments and would cost no more over the seven year period than for a five year plan he offered as an alternative.

The first payment for the truck was figured at $4,416 with $309 interest and the payments will decrease over the seven year period. The first payment under the five year plan would have been $5,182 with $432 of that payment making up the interest payment.

In other business, the commission:

—Adopted ordinances increasing water and sewer rates and garbage rates but refused to adopt an ordinance which would have raised the city's public service tax to 10 per cent across the board for water, sewer, electricity and telephone bills rather than the current sliding scale starting at 10 per cent and ending up at 1 per cent for high bills.

The tax measure failed in spite of a statement by Acting City Manager Lomax Harrelle that the city's budget for 1980-81 couldn't be balanced without it.

"You'll just have to find some other way to balance the budget," Commissioner Ray Sullivan said. "I'm against it. You realize who this'll hurt? The businessman. I sure feel sorry for the businessman."

Commissioner Vernita Cox moved to adopt the ordinance and Commissioner Refugio Garcia seconded it but it failed in a stalemate vote when Sullivan and Mayor Don Tanner voted against it. Commissioner Sammy Rogers was absent from the meeting.

There was some discussion about much extra revenue the tax measure would have generated for the city, with various parties giving figures ranging from $4,000 for the year to $12,000 and even $60,000. There was no final agreement on how much the revenue would have been.

—Received no comment on the city's Federal Revenue Sharing Funds in a public hearing.

—Awarded a low bid in the

500 students need shots

BELLE GLADE — Some 500 Glades area schoolchildren who have not had physical check-ups or immunization shots must comply within the next four weeks or face being excluded from classrooms.

The state law requiring students at the kindergarten, first and ninth grade levels to submit records of recent physical exams and immunization within the first eight weeks of school is being enforced, according to Betty Kroesen, area nursing supervisor of the County Health Department. Some 100 primary pupils and 400 ninth graders still must meet the health requirements.

Meanwhile, health department personnel are facing an added burden of parents making appointments, for children's physicals and not keeping them, Mrs. Kroesen says.

As a result, she advises parents who are able to do so to make appointments with private physicians in order to meet the deadline. There isn't time now to make appointments for all the children involved, she pointed out.

WORKING ON THE RAILROAD, a crew of Florida East Coast Railroad employees were this morning repairing the crossing on SR715 at Glades Plaza, ripping up old rails and drawing spikes that had begun protruding above the roadway, a bonus, once the crew winds up its job Friday, will be a left turn lane for southbound drivers wanting to turn into Southwest Avenue E.

Discrimination against uglies is ugly

Dunk's Almanac

Letter to the Editor

By H. G. DUNCAN

The American society has somehow managed to be divided into a host of minorities, all of which claim to be grossly discriminated against.

The blacks, the Indians, the Jews, the Hispanics, the women, the gays, the left-handeders, the handicapped — you name it and it is a maligned minority.

Each group marches and shouts for denied rights. Legislative bodies pass new laws. Courts make new decisions. And no one group is ever satisfied.

In our cloying pretense that everyone is equal in all things, we have overlooked probably the largest minority and the most disadvantaged of all: the unattractive person.

Yet as serious as one may be on this topic, one's head reels with comical comments. That's part of the discrimination I'm thinking about: Our readiness to poke fun at these unfortunates.

It seems to be part of human nature to gravitate toward the attractive and to recoil from the unattractive.

A person unfortunate enough to be born (or to later become) physically unattractive is discriminated against all his life. Comparisons are made and he grows up recognizing that he or she simply does not stack up against the rest of the world.

I am one who firmly believes that one's basic personality and character are pretty well solidified by the age of five or six. An unattractive person entering school has already suffered five or six years of disappointing comparison to the attractive world in which he lives. So, in school when the first grade teacher naturally seems to be more smiling, more civil, more inclined toward attractive schoolmates, the unattractive accepts it as his due.

I recall the two sisters several years ago. One was a beautiful princess, and the other the ugly duckling; both of them of the same parents and gifts of the same God. I heard the unattractive one sobbingly trying to talk with her sinisterly smiling sister on the way home from school. I shall never forget the sobbing desperation: "I can't help it if I'm ugly. I want to be pretty like you, but I never will be."

Even the unattractive have their hierarchy and they blast each other as being uglier than the "rest of us." I remember a cruel poem I wrote to a grammar schoolmate during World War II. The guy was tall, clumsy, and had eyes which were slanted, although he was not of Oriental origin. "Roses are red, violets are blue, Top's a Jap, and so are you."

He very easily could have cleaned my clock, but he was too inept to insult to be further damaged. Or, he was too much character.

In spite of the countless dollars spent in artificial means of becoming more attractive, there are damned few unattractive secretaries in the higher paid executive positions. Those who have had to arm themselves with abilities far exceeding their more attractive contemporaries. The unattractive fall to the rear of the line in obtaining jobs, spouses, equal treatment, promotion. The unattractive have to obtain credentials more impressive than the attractive in order to compete equally in this unequal world in trying to get the breaks of life.

Our recent history seems to

Dear Editor:

The Florida Medical Association would appreciate an opportunity through this section of your newspaper to state the Association's position and furnish what information we have available about drug dimethyl sulfoxide, commonly known as DMSO.

DMSO is essentially the oil liquid which holds true cells together. It is a by-product from the manufacture of paper. Research on the drug has been taking place since the early 1960's.

In April of 1978 the drug was approved by the Food and Drug Administration for the symptomatic relief of interstitial cystitis only. On Sunday, March 28, 1980, the CBS television program "60 Minutes" broadcast a segment on DMSO which featured claims for the drug in treating symptoms other than that for which it has been cleared by the FDA. The program also stated that the drug was available in Oregon and Florida.

Since that time an almost daily stream of inquiries both by letter and telephone have been directed to our state headquarters in Jacksonville. Most of the in-state queries are from the media while the majority from out of state are individuals seeking a physician to provide them with this perceived "miracle cure" for a variety of symptoms.

Without an approved new drug application, the drug cannot be marketed or distributed in Florida for indications other than the treatment of interstitial cystitis. However, legally, a doctor may prescribe an approved drug for other indications.

The Florida Legislature passed a law in 1978 which permits a physician to use DMSO after advising the patient of alternative treatment and any potential for cure. The law requires that upon request to the physician for DMSO treatment, the patient shall sign a written release of liability to the physician and when applicable, the hospital or facility. The physician shall inform the patient in writing if DMSO had been approved by the FDA for the disorder for which it is being prescribed.

The Florida Medical Association does not condone going outside of the approved and responsible mechanism for the introduction of a new drug. As a matter of fact, physicians covered by professional liability insurance under the FMA-sponsored plan have been warned regarding the drug. They will not be covered by the plan if they use DMSO for any symptom other than the relief of interstitial cystitis for which, as previously stated, it is approved by the FDA.

At the same time, FMA does encourage its physician members who are interested, to take part in the FDA investigational program in this and other areas. Assistance is available for obtaining from the FDA an Investigational New Drug Application (IND) plus sterile non-pyrogen DMSO solution. In order to participate in this research, the physician must agree to keep the necessary records. The DMSO solution will be supplied free of charge and assistance given to the physician in developing the necessary protocol.

As to the law passed during this year's legislative session, allowing for the manufacture, distribution, and sale of a DMSO ointment in Florida, FMA has direct knowledge and no participation in any way in this matter. We are informed by officials in the Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services that they are in the process of developing rules and regulations to govern the manufacture of such a product and that at this time one formal application to do so has been submitted.

FMA does not have, nor do we plan to develop, a list of physicians and/or clinics who are going outside of established protocol and administering the drug to patients. Not only would this be contrary to our policy of safeguarding the public's health, but could place FMA in a libelous position. Consumer inquiries concerning DMSO or any other new experimental drugs should be directed to the FDA Bureau of Drugs, Advisory Opinion Board HFD 35, 5600 Fishers Lane, Rockville, Maryland 20852.

Respectfully,

are not organized. They do not protest for their cause. No laws are passed in their favor. They have accepted their lower-rung position in life. Do yourself a favor and commit a Christian act. Look beyond the ugliness: it's only surface cover.

After a lengthy cocktail party conversation with a most unattractive lady, the gentleman said to her with sincerity: "You are truly a beautiful person!" She recoiled, and made some remark like, "You must be blind!" He replied, "I never look at visible beauty. That is temporary. True beauty is in the heart."

he will be remembered as one of our greatest. He was pretty. Years ago I looked into the qualifications for becoming a cadet at the Naval Academy at Annapolis. One disqualifying feature was "extreme ugliness."

The attractive waiters gets bigger tips compared to her buck-toothed sister. The nice-looking guy in the Brooks suit has more credibility than the pock-marked, fat guy in the open collared, K-Mart shirt.

We place too much credit in "beauty," in accoutrements. That's human, but it ain't fair. The uglies of this country told when he was teaching at FSU, in no uncertain terms, that he was to raise the grade of Fred Biletniok to a "C," regardless of the fact the future pro receiver had earned a dismal 17 for the term.

The result is that unless a jock can beat almost unmountable odds and break into the pros, and I heard somewhere there are fewer than 1,500 professional black athletes in the entire nation, they won't get to play for pay and they won't have an education either unless they look out for themselves.

It can even go so far as the

Energy crisis is ours to solve

The American Petroleum Institute says the United States can cut its oil imports in half within the next 10 years if it wants to. This raises the question of where responsibility for the "energy crisis" really lies.

The conventional wisdom is that first and foremost we are in trouble because the planet Earth has only a limited supply of the petroleum on which we have come to depend heavily for fuel. Further, most of the oil that is left is beyond our borders, making us vulnerable to the power of foreign countries to control its price and supply.

True enough. But the API, which speaks for the oil industry, is making the point that the extent to which this creates a "crisis" for the American people is still pretty much our own affair. As it is, we produce 80 percent of the energy we consume. It is within grasp, says the

API, to derive 90 percent of our energy from domestic sources, relieving our economy of much of the pressure which the dependency on imports is creating.

As the API experts work it out, our present demand for about 8 million barrels of imported oil per day could be cut in half by 1990 by permitting more development of energy resources on federal land, by striking a "more careful balance" between environmental considerations and energy needs, by getting our derailed nuclear energy program back on the track, and by promoting more private development of synthetic fuels and other alternate energy sources.

It is easy to see that the API is supporting policies that would give the oil industry a freer hand to go about its business than it now enjoys. But the fact that oil and energy companies are frustrated by restraints on the extent of their activities on federal land, and by environmental laws, does not rob the API report of its technical validity.

The fact is that the United States is still an energy-rich country — measured in its petroleum reserves, its enormous coal resources, the potential of its nuclear technology, and its opportunity to exploit alternative energy sources. The value of the API report is that it documents these riches and offers a blueprint for harvesting them — if that's what America wants to do.

That's a big "if" — the basis for a debate on energy policy that is still ahead. After congressional agonizing that has spanned the Nixon, Ford and Carter administrations, oil and gas prices are finally being decontrolled — the sine qua non of an effective energy policy. As a result there is now more incentive for conservation and an economic spur for development of alternative fuels and energy sources which price controls had held back. But where do we go from here?

How much can we afford to compromise our environmental standards and land-use restrictions for the sake of tapping the significant store of energy resources which the API has catalogued? How rapidly can we proceed with safety toward further nuclear development? To what extent should the government regulate the new energy industries now aborning?

Those questions pose a debate on energy policy as lively as any we have heard so far. The way they are answered will determine, as the API study suggests, just how serious our "energy crisis" turns out to be.

Decline of literacy...

The end of childhood

Reprinted by permission of The Sacramento Bee.

There have been so many theories propounded in recent years about the reasons for the decline in this country's literacy — itself a matter of uncertain dimensions — that it's difficult even to maintain a current list. Recently, however, two items came along almost simultaneously that made us pay attention.

One was an article by Anthony Brandt in "American Heritage," which concludes, rather persuasively we think, that the decline in literacy among the nation's school children is not attributable solely, or even primarily, to the schools themselves but to a "profound public indifference to the blessings which only the printed word can bestow."

The fundamental problem, thus, is not bad teaching or inadequate teaching methods — a century ago, Brandt argues, the literacy level in this country was considerably higher than the percentage of children attending school — but a decline in "deeply-held values" that honored reading as an absolute necessity of life.

The other item is a speech by Neil Postman, an educationist at New York University, called "Childhood's End." Postman's talk, if anything, was even more gloomy, but it makes a similar point. Because of the decline in reading and its replacement by the electronic media, childhood as a separate stage in personal development is itself in decline.

For 500 years, literacy forced a gap between children and adults. Postman said — a gap that was not closed for each generation until the individual acquired the skills and literacy background of adults. Television wipes out the gap "because it requires no instruction to grasp its form, and because it does not segregate its audience. It communicates the same information to everyone regardless of age, sex or level of education."

Postman doesn't suggest that TV creates instant adults. On the contrary, he seems to fear that it promotes perpetual childishness — "an obsessive need for immediate gratification, a lack of concern for consequences, an almost preoccupation with consumption."

The result is that children remain like "TV's adult-child all their lives, with no sense of dramatic capacity for lasting relationships, no respect for limits, and no grasp of the future."

One has to take all that with a grain of salt. It's still possible that literacy will turn out in the long run to be in much better shape than Brandt and Postman imply. Given any sort of social effort — not by schools alone but most significantly by the larger society — it's doubtful that the decline is irremediable. It's also obvious that if there is contagious contempt for literacy, schools and school teachers, forces that should be in the forefront of the resistance, are sometimes most fatally afflicted.

At the same time, however, there are ample reasons to worry about the general social commitment to literacy values. Those values will not survive through lip service or school proficiency tests or teaching gimmicks. They will only survive through practice and example and a deep conviction that without literacy civilization itself is in jeopardy. It should be unnecessary to say all that. That it seems worth saying is itself cause for concern.

Carter wants it both ways

President Carter, who has appeared most recently in the role of steely-eyed guardian of fiscal integrity, turned up in New York the other day a born-again big spender.

Speaking before the national Urban League convention, Mr. Carter proudly promised to "create" millions and millions of jobs. Even allowing for a little election-year hyperbole, that translates into a lot of government spending for federal make-work projects. And, if the past offers any clue, as it surely does, these spending programs will merely deepen the federal deficit, heighten inflation and leave the poor more dependent than ever on their shrinking welfare checks.

Mr. Carter's contradictory posturing on economic issues points up a big problem he has created for himself. Is he going to campaign as a fiscal conservative or as a New Deal spender? He is obviously groping for the position that will harvest the most votes. And he briefly caught some of the mood of the country in his call last fall for that ephemeral balanced budget and for a tight money policy to reduce inflation.

But he never was able to persuade himself to reduce federal spending, and now the tax and spend liberal has burst forth. He was the quintessential New Dealer before the Urban League recently.

Mr. Carter has embraced greedily. Is he recent word brought back by some Democratic congressmen that their constituents don't want a tax cut. Thus relieved of any pressure to economize, he can foresee the inflated tax dollars rolling in and rolling out again in the good works which will, by his reckoning, produce "millions and millions and millions" of jobs.

Obviously, he has misread the attitude of the taxpayers. Of course people want a tax cut, but they want it coupled with a real cut in government spending to reduce inflation — not as an election-year pacifier.

In the forthcoming election campaign, Mr. Carter's ambivalence about federal spending will come under closer scrutiny of the voters and he will have to make up his mind whether he is for fiscal integrity or pump-priming deficits. He can't have it both ways much longer.

'Population increases geometrically...'

Malthus updated

The Global 2000 Report to the president, just made public, is a 766-page document summarizing the findings of a prestigious study group which was commissioned three years ago by President Carter to analyze the condition of the planet and its inhabitants in the year 2000, just 20 years away.

This is the first time the U.S. government or any government has attempted to study all at once the "probable changes in the world's population, natural resources, and environment through the end of the century." It could well be one of the more impressive and abiding achievements of the Carter administration.

The Global 2000 Report's conclusions are grimly discouraging — a warning and a simultaneous summons to action before it's too late. In summary, it predicts: "If present trends continue, the world in 2000 will be more crowded, more polluted, less stable ecologically, and more vulnerable to disruption than the world we live in now. Serious stresses involving population, resources, and environment are clearly visible ahead."

Specifically, it forecasts a jump in the world's population of more than 50 percent, from 4 billion in 1975 to 6.35 billion in 2000, with most of this increase taking place in the low-income, less-developed countries. Food production will continue to grow, but mostly in well-fed, developed areas where only a quarter of the people live so that hunger on a global scale lurks just over the horizon.

The increasing population will devour the earth's dwindling resources at an alarming rate. Fossil fuels will begin to run low. Deforestation will strip away almost 50 percent of the world's forests — the planet's lungs. At the same time, the stepped-up burning of coal to meet ever-rising energy demands will liberate more carbon dioxide into the atmosphere. This could warm the earth through a "green-house effect" that would melt polar ice to raise ocean levels and inundate coastal cities on every continent.

Unlike so many government-sponsored studies, this one will not lie forgotten on the shelves. Pictures of the earth from outer space remind us of how fragile our life systems are on this ark.

We don't doubt that "revolutionary advances" suggested in the report can help keep fair this earth. Man can still master his environment. Meanwhile, The Global 2000 Report will do much to alert men and nations to cooperate in bringing this mastery about.

Pay cuts reflect labor union job survival

It's not that the United Rubber Workers Union is growing soft. The agreement by the members employed by Uniroyal to accept a 12.9 percent cut in pay for the balance of 1980 was a hardheaded decision to save union jobs. The troubled manufacturer of tires and other rubber products is a victim of the rippling effect of the woes that beset the auto industry.

There was some speculation that Uniroyal could not have survived without the cooperation of its employees.

The wage reduction Aug. 1 will be restored Jan. 1, but cost-of-living allowances will be suspended for 1980 and 1981.

The average cut will be 58 cents an hour.

Union leaders concede that the pay cut action is the first in its history. It is even more dramatic than the concessions made by the United Auto

Workers in a contract struck to save troubled Chrysler Corp. from going under.

If there are any remaining doubts that the nation is experiencing recession, they are not surfacing in Detroit or Akron.

New crop for space

Outside the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, there is little excitement about the space program.

There have been no manned flights recently. The moon landing 11 years ago has faded in memory. The promise of the space shuttle is obscured by endless tests of Dutch physicist for the one-year program. The American group includes two women, one black and one Hispanic.

The lure of the unknown has lost none of its magic. The spirit of adventure remains strong. More of the mysterious space will be challenged and explored in the years to come.

Public imagination will again be stirred — next time, perhaps, by a possible melting-pot colony on a lonely platform in the far reaches of the universe.

But 3,400 young men and women applied for the astronaut training that just began at the Johnson Space Center at Houston.

And the 19 successful candidates were joined by a Swiss astronomer and a

Spending slowdown started

BELLE GLADE — The city commission agreed in concept Monday night to the urgent request by Acting City Manager and City Finance Director Frank Anderson for a drastic slowdown on spending in the face of dwindling cash reserves, the delay of anticipated income and large bills expected to fall due shortly.

"In June and July," Anderson told the commissioners, "we were estimating a reserve fund balance of $350,000 and a cash carryover, or surplus (from 1979-80 to 1980-81) of $250,000."

Anderson said more recent figures, however, put the figure of the surplus from this year nearer to $75,000 than $250,000, a shortfall of $175,000.

Anderson recommended, and the commissioners have already agreed during budget sessions, to do whatever necessary to maintain the cash reserves at $350,000.

"Because of this condition," Anderson said, "together with the TRIM bill setting back the time we will receive tax monies, the fact that Congress has not yet appropriated funds for General Revenue Sharing, and insurance premiums of approximately $225,000 come due Jan. 1, 1981, I am recommending we do all we can to slow down expenditure of money until Jan. 1, at which time we will further evaluate the situation.

"We can delay the purchase of capital outlay items," Anderson said, "do all we can to cut down on purchase of materials and supplies, especially fuel and electricity, delay filling vacant positions unless necessary, stick to budgeted items, don't start new projects, and generally anything to cut down on the spending of money during the coming calendar quarter."

"It is my intention," he said, "to put this plan of slow down on spending into effect."

Anderson said after the meeting the city has spent more than anticipated on capital outlay items during the past year, including an estimated $339,000 for Airport Park instead of the originally estimated $281,000.

As had been planned, $206,000 of that cost erased the entire recreational cash reserves of $281,000. The fund had been built up to a maximum figure of $459,113 in 1977 and the commission had agreed before that to use that money to build up the city's recreational program, including the construction of Lake Shore and Airport Parks.

Rabies hearing slated

WEST PALM BEACH — Three year rabies vaccinations will be the subject of discussion during a Sept. 30 meeting of the Palm Beach County Animal Regulation Advisory Board. The meeting will get underway at 7:30 p.m. in Room 101 of the county court house at 300 N. Dixie Highway.

She also noted some states have gone over to the three year program and Dade County has adopted a two year program. She said she feels

Energy audit starts

MIAMI — Florida Power & Light Company has instituted a residential energy audit program in anticipation of state energy guidelines.

Since the program was started in mid-March, FPL has completed nearly 4,000 pilot audits of single and multi-family dwellings. The audits eventually will be offered to all customers.

In preparation for enactment of the state's energy plan early in 1981, FPL is expanding the energy survey program by adding 36 auditors to its staff, bringing the total to 56.

The new auditors will undergo a six-week training program before taking on their new assignments throughout FPL's service area.

It's expected that FPL will be asked to handle some 75,000 audits a year by 1982, according to Project Manager Bill Davis.

be notified when the audits become available for everyone.

Lady Athena opens large woman's store

The Glades' first large men's clothing store, Lady Athena, opens its doors next week in Belle Glade, on Sept. 27.

It will fulfill a desperate need of the community. "I've always wanted to go into business and I think there's a need for this kind of shop, a real community need to provide attire for the big and beautiful women in our area," Bair said.

Mrs. Bair, whose husband, Wayne, runs Bair Communications, said Bonnie Godsey Gilliam will manage the store. Lady Athena's hours will be 9 a.m.-5:30 p.m., Monday-Saturday.

"I'm very excited about this and I've gotten a lot of family support and community support," she said. She also said full-figured Glades ladies will no longer have to go to the Gold Coast to purchase their clothes.

A variety of elegant and casual items will be carried by Lady Athena, including brands like Ship and Shore, Kay Windsor, R and K Originals, Tris's Women, Teddy of California, Judy Bond and Youngstuf.

The Bair's have two children, Danny, 18, and Deborah, 20. Both attend the University of Florida at Gainesville. Danny studies agriculture while Deborah is interested in interior design.

onths or even a year if he had some assurance of access but he was concerned over extended delays while the City of Belle Glade and the area as whole was paying an estimated $15 a ton to ship garbage and trash to Lantana, an operation that will begin in November.

"To get to the short of it," he said, "I want to be sure we're not waiting on some pipe dream."

"Speaking for the City of South Bay," Commissioner Don Tanner commented, "I'd rather wait three years if there's a chance we can get rid of solid waste at no charge somewhere down the line."

Bailey said he felt that the committee has been along with B&W for two years and, while there's no commitment, he feels the committee should sit on or off the hook with B&W before endorsing a MEC program.

When Altman moved to endorse the concept of a alcohol plant, he made it clear there are reservations, namely that the endorsement stipulates how the committee knows about the system and at there's no real or implied commitment on the part of the committee.

Easley said that was satisfactory to him and, after the motion passed, Bailey directed Solid Waste Authority James Adams to go over the endorsement.

Adams had earlier commented that the delay used by the feasibility study would have the advantage of giving the committee a chance to get a better handle on the exact cost of hauling solid waste to the coast and how much solid waste is generated in the Glades.

In other business, the committee: Postponed any action on a contract with B&W Energy Systems, Inc. after Adams said he had only a chance to re-write the contract itself and didn't have a chance to go over the appendices, here he said the "guts" of the agreement are dated and which would also need rewriting.

Adams also said he hadn't seen a rewrite by financial consultant Russell Hawkes or Belle Glade City Attorney John Baker, both of whom were poised to have gone over the agreement.

Learned from Authority Director Tim Hunt that a opening of the transfer station at the Belle Glade landfill has been delayed because rainy weather has delayed construction. Hunt estimated a station would begin operations Nov. 1 instead of Oct. 1.

Hear a report from Adams to the effect that hokee is not now a member of the Budget and Policy Advisory Committee because, although hokee was included when the committee was formed, the city had never signed an interlocal agreement reached by Belle Glade, South Bay, the city and the Solid Waste Authority.

Billy McKinstrie commented he saw no problem with that because the contract would have been for a Solid Waste Authority to provide a facility to rid of garbage and trash and no such facility has been constructed yet.

The original concept for the facility was a combustion incinerator, landfill and mulching operation but Pahokee backed out when the other members refused to help Pahokee pay for the cost of transporting its garbage and trash to the facility in Belle Glade.

Bailey, after the report, invited McKinstrie to sit on the meetings anyway and join in the decision. He expressed his hope that Pahokee would be included in the official committee as a member in the near future.

Energy crisis is ours to solve

The American Petroleum Institute says the United States can cut its oil imports in half within the next 10 years if it wants to. This raises the question of where responsibility for the "energy crisis" really lies.

The conventional wisdom is that first and foremost we are in trouble because the planet Earth has only a limited supply of the petroleum on which we have come to depend heavily for fuel. Further, most of the oil that is left is beyond our borders, making us vulnerable to the power of foreign countries to control its price and supply.

True enough. But the API, which speaks for the oil industry, is making the point that the extent to which this creates a "crisis" for the American people is still pretty much our own affair. As it is, we produce 80 percent of the energy we consume. It is within grasp, says the

API, to derive 90 percent of our energy from domestic sources, relieving our economy of much of the pressure which the dependency on imports is creating.

As the API experts work it out, our present demand for about 8 million barrels of imported oil per day could be cut in half by 1990 by permitting more development of energy resources on federal land, by striking a "more careful balance" between environmental considerations and energy needs, by getting our derailed nuclear energy program back on the track, and by promoting more private development of synthetic fuels and other alternate energy sources.

It is easy to see that the API is supporting policies that would give the oil industry a freer hand to go about its business than it now enjoys. But the fact that oil and energy companies are frustrated by restraints on the extent of their activities on federal land, and by environmental laws, does not rob the API report of its technical validity.

The fact is that the United States is still an energy-rich country — measured in its petroleum reserves, its enormous coal resources, the potential of its nuclear technology, and its opportunity to exploit alternative energy sources. The value of the API report is that it documents these riches and offers a blueprint for harvesting them — if that's what America wants to do.

That's a big "if" — the basis for a debate on energy policy that is still ahead. After congressional agonizing that has spanned the Nixon, Ford and Carter administrations, oil and gas prices are finally being decontrolled — the sine qua non

of an effective energy policy. As a result there is now more incentive for conservation and an economic spur for development of alternative fuels and energy sources which price controls had held back. But where do we go from here?

How much can we afford to compromise our environmental standards and land-use restrictions for the sake of tapping the significant store of energy resources which the API has catalogued? How rapidly can we proceed with safety toward further nuclear development? To what extent should the government regulate the new energy industries now aborning?

Those questions pose a debate on energy policy as lively as any we have heard so far. The way they are answered will determine, as the API study suggests, just how serious our "energy crisis" turns out to be.

Decline of literacy...

The end of childhood

Reprinted by permission of The Sacramento Bee.

There have been so many theories propounded in recent years about the reasons for the decline in this country's literacy — itself a matter of uncertain dimensions — that it's difficult even to maintain a current list. Recently, however, two items came along almost simultaneously that made us pay attention.

One was an article by Anthony Brandt in "American Heritage," which concludes, rather persuasively we think, that the decline in literacy among the nation's school children is not attributable solely, or even primarily, to the schools themselves but to a "profound public indifference to the blessings which only the printed word can bestow."

The fundamental problem, thus, is not bad teaching or inadequate teaching methods — a century ago, Brandt argues, the literacy level in this country was considerably higher than the percentage of children attending school — but a decline in "deeply-held values" that honored reading as an absolute necessity of life.

The other item is a speech by Neil Postman, an educationist at New York University, called "Childhood's End." Postman's talk, if anything, was even more gloomy, but it makes a similar point. Because of the decline in reading and its replacement by the electronic media, childhood as a separate stage in personal development is itself in decline.

For 500 years, literacy forced a gap between children and adults. Postman said — a gap that was not closed for each generation until the individual acquired the skills and literacy background of adults. Television wipes out the gap "because it requires no instruction to grasp its form, and because it does not segregate its audience. It communicates the same information to everyone regardless of age, sex or level of education."

Postman doesn't suggest that TV creates instant adults. On the contrary, he seems to fear that it promotes perpetual childishness — an obsessive need for immediate gratification, a lack of concern for consequences, an almost promiscuous preoccupation with consumption.

The result is that children remain like "TV's adult-child all their lives, with no sense of place, no capacity for lasting relationships, no respect for limits, and no grasp of the future."

One has to take all that with a grain of salt. It's still possible that literacy will turn out in the long run to be in much better shape than Brandt and Postman imply. Given any sort of social effort — not by schools alone but, more significantly by the larger society — it's doubtful that the decline is irremediable. It's also obvious that if there is contagious contempt for literacy, schools and school teachers, forces that should be in the forefront of the resistance, are sometimes most fatally afflicted.

At the same time, however, there are ample reasons to worry about the general social commitment to literacy values. Those values will not survive through lip service or school proficiency tests or teaching "gimmicks." They will only survive through practice and example and a deep conviction that without literacy civilization itself is in jeopardy. It should be unnecessary to say all that. That it seems worth saying is itself cause for concern.

Carter wants it both ways

President Carter, who has appeared most recently in the role of steady-eyed guardian of fiscal integrity, turned up in New York the other day a born-again big spender.

Speaking before the national Urban League convention, Mr. Carter vaguely promised to create "millions and millions of jobs." Even allowing for a little election-year hyperbole, that translates into a lot of government spending for federal make-work projects. And, if the past offers any clue, as it surely does, these spending programs will merely deepen the federal deficit, heighten inflation and leave the poor more dependent than ever on their shrinking welfare checks.

Mr. Carter's contradictory posture on economic issues points up a big problem he has created for himself. Is he going to campaign as a fiscal conservative or as a New Deal spender? He is obviously groping for the position that will harvest the most votes. And he briefly caught some of the mood of the country in his call last fall for that ephemeral balanced budget and for a tight money policy to reduce inflation.

But he never was able to persuade himself to reduce federal spending, and now the tax and spend liberal has burst forth. He was the quintessential New Dealer before the Urban League recently.

Mr. Carter has embraced gratefully the recent word brought back by some Democratic congressmen that their constituents don't want a tax cut. Thus relieved of any pressure to economize, he can foresee the inflated tax dollars rolling in and rolling out again in the good works which, by his reckoning, produce "millions and millions and millions" of jobs.

Obviously, he has misread the attitude of the taxpayers. Of course people want a tax cut, but they want it coupled with a real cut in government spending to reduce inflation — not as an election-year pacifier.

In the forthcoming election campaign, Mr. Carter's ambivalence about federal spending will come under closer scrutiny of the voters and he will have to make up his mind whether he is for fiscal integrity or pump-priming deficits. He can't have it both ways much longer.

One was an article by Anthony Brandt in "American Heritage," which concludes, rather persuasively we think, that the decline in literacy among the nation's school children is not attributable solely, or even primarily, to the schools themselves but to a "profound public indifference to the blessings which only the printed word can bestow."

The fundamental problem, thus, is not bad teaching or inadequate

'Population increases geometrically...'

Malthus updated

The Global 2000 Report to the president, just made public, is a 766-page document summarizing the findings of a prestigious study group which was commissioned three years ago by President Carter to analyze the condition of the planet and its inhabitants in the year 2000, just 20 years away.

This is the first time the U.S. government or any government has attempted to study all at once the "probable changes in the world's population, natural resources, and environment through the end of the century." It could well be one of the more impressive achievements of the Carter administration.

The Global 2000 Report's conclusions are grimly discouraging — a warning and a simultaneous summons to action before it's too late. In summary, it predicts: "If present trends continue, the world in 2000 will be more crowded, more polluted, less stable ecologically, and more vulnerable to disruption than the world we live in now. Serious stresses involving population, resources, and environment are clearly visible ahead."

Specifically, it forecasts a jump in the world's population of more than 50 percent, from 4 billion in 1975 to 6.25 billion in 2000, with most of this increase taking place in the low-income, less-developed countries. Food production will continue to grow, but mostly in well-fed, developed areas where only a quarter of the people live so that hunger on a global scale lurks just over the horizon.

The increasing population will devour the earth's dwindling resources at an alarming rate. Fossil fuels will begin to run low. Deforestation will strip away almost 50 percent of the world's forests — the planet's lungs.

At the same time, the stepped-up burning of coal to meet ever-increasing energy demands will liberate more carbon dioxide into the atmosphere. This could warm the earth through a "greenhouse effect" that would melt polar ice to raise ocean levels and inundate coastal cities on every continent.

Unlike so many government-sponsored studies, this one will not lie forgotten on the shelves.

Pictures of the earth from outer space remind us of how fragile our life systems are on this ark.

We don't doubt that "revolutionary advances" suggested in the report can help keep fair this earth. Man can still master his environment. Meanwhile, The Global 2000 Report will do much to alert men and nations to cooperate in bringing this mastery about.

Pay cuts reflect labor union job survival

It's not that the United Rubber Workers Union is growing soft. The agreement by the members employed by Uniroyal to accept a 12.5 percent cut in pay for the balance of 1980 was a hardheaded decision to save union jobs. The troubled manufacturer of tires and other rubber products is a victim of the rippling effect of the woes that beset the auto industry.

There was some speculation that Uniroyal could not have survived without the cooperation of its employees.

The wage reduction Aug. 1 will be restored Jan. 1, but cost-of-living allowances will be suspended for 1980 and 1981.

The average cut will be 58 cents an hour.

Union leaders concede that the pay cut action is the first in its history. It is even more dramatic than the concessions made by the United Auto

Workers in a contract struck to save troubled Chrysler Corp. from going under.

If there are any remaining doubts that the nation is experiencing recession, they are not surfacing in Detroit or Akron.

New crop for space

Outside the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, there is little excitement about the space program.

There have been no manned flights recently. The moon landing 14 years ago has faded in memory. The promise of the space shuttle is obscured by endless tests of the recoverable craft that will someday make round-trip calls to an orbiting space laboratory.

But 3,400 young men and women applied for the astronaut training that just began at the Johnson Space Center at Houston.

And the 19 successful candidates were joined by a Swiss astronomer and a Dutch physicist for the one-year program. The American group includes two women, one black and one Hispanic.

The lure of the unknown has lost none of its magic. The spirit of adventure remains strong. More of the mysteries of space will be challenged and explored in the years to come.

Public imagination will again be stirred — next time, perhaps by a possible melting-pot colony on a lonely platform in the far reaches of the universe.

The new conception of space initiated by Neil Armstrong in 1969: remains a challenge to tempt the new crop of space adventurers — and the world.

Rabies hearing slated

WEST PALM BEACH — Three year rabies vaccination will be the subject of discussion during a Sept. 30 meeting of the Palm Beach County Animal Regulation Advisory Board. The meeting will get underway at 7:30 p.m. in Room 101 of the county court house at 300 N. Dixie Highway.

Board member Suzanne J. La Fara said she has been trying since 1977 to get the county to adopt a three year program instead of the mandatory one year vaccinations now offered.

"The veterinarians in Palm Beach County that were members of the Animal Advisory Board (in 1977)," Ms. La Fara said, "were against using the three year rabie vaccination program. I have brought the program up once again before the Advisory Board of Animal Regulation, of which I am a member."

"I felt then and do now," she said, "that their only interest was financial gain from the annual one year vaccination ordinance than the health of the animals."

Ms. La Fara said she has been advised that the last rabid domestic animal in the county was in 1959 and the last wildlife reported was a raccoon in 1973.

"Palm Beach County is not a high risk area," she said.

Ms. La Fara said an article in the April 1, 1979 issue of the Journal of the American

LEGAL NOTICE

Notice is hereby given that Public Hearings will be held before the Planning and Zoning Board on Thursday, October 2, 1980, at 8:00 P.M. in the City Hall, 110 S.W. # Paving program recommended

BELLE GLADE—A list of 12 streets in need of resurfacing during the coming fiscal year was provided city commissioners by Public Works Director Ron Sigman with a recommendation that the work be done in December.

Sigman said eight of the streets could be paved, at a cost of $68,982.10 from the general funds and four could be done under the Community Development Program at a cost of $27,255. He noted, however, that budget cuts had left only $50,000 budgeted for street paving in 1980-81.

Instead of going to bids,

Sigman recommended the city use Rubin Construction Co. of West Palm Beach. Rubin has the State of Florida contract for this year and the cost would be $34.50 a ton for Type II asphalt in place. The 1978 price was $25.50 a ton.

He said the advantage of waiting until December would be that the city should have completed all the sewer and water line work in the areas covered by the streets.

The list of proposed work is presented to the commission every year for the commission's approval and usually contains more work than the budget will allow, giving the commissioners a chance to set priorities and possibly add other streets while deleting some.

No action was taken during the workshop but the commissioners were given copies of the list and they're expected to comment in the near future.

The streets being considered are:

- S.E. 4th St. N. (E. Canal St. to Ave. A.)
- S.E. 1st St. (Ave. E to Canal)
- S.E. 2nd Street (Ave. E to Canal)
- S.E. 4th St. (Ave. E to Ave. B.)
- S.E. 4th St. (Ave. G to Ave. B.)
- N.W. Ave. I (1st St. to 4th St.)
- N.E. Ave. I (Main to 1st St.)
- Country Club parking lot.
- S.W. 1st St. (Ave. F to Canal)
- S.W. 2nd St. (Ave. E to Canal)
- S.W. 3rd St. (Ave. E to Canal)
- S.W. Ave. F (4th St. to Main).

Adventures in Boy Scouting will be the theme of three rallies Thursday night to be held in Belle Glade, Clewiston, and Moore Haven.

Displays and demonstrations of Scouting skills are planned to encourage boys to join the Scout program.

In Belle Glade, rallies will be held at 7:30 p.m. for boys aged 11 to 18 at the Okeechobee Center, the National Guard Armory and the East Lake Middle School.

In Clewiston, a rally is planned for 7:30 p.m. at the Middle School and is open to boys 11 to 18.

THANK YOU for such beautiful grounds, was the sentiments uttered by the Pahokee Elementary School staff to custodians at the school Monday when Dr. Harris Blumberg, principal, recognized the school's custodial staff during the faculty meeting for their outstanding work

by Anderson to provide mobile home sites for two marine employees and two security people instead of three employee and one security person.

Public Works Director Ron Sigman told the commissioners weather has delayed the anticipated Oct. 1 opening date for the new section. He said he has been told the revised date is Oct. 15 but that he thinks a more realistic date would be the third week of the month.

--Heard a report by Anderson that the Lake Shore Civic Center had been used by the Florida State Employment Service as a hiring hall for what was estimated to be 1,400 Haitians as cane cutters by area sugar growers.

Anderson said he had agreed to provide city police officers for security, at the request of Belle Glade FES Director Joe Taylor but recommended, and the commissioners agreed, not to allow the center to be used for that type of service in the future.

Anderson said he had been informed the first Haitians were at the center at 3 a.m. Monday, five hours before the FSES opened up their hiring hall. He said he had been told there were groups of as many as 200 Haitians at a time throughout the day.

Sheriff's deputies joined city police on the scene to maintain order and they were joined by city and sheriff's office canine units. Two arrests were made during the day.

--Agreed to undertake maintenance of one bicycle path along Airport Road and part of another bike path still under construction on SR 717. The maintenance, Anderson said, would be cutting and spraying grass along the paths.

--Heard a report from Anderson that Rubin Construction Co. of West Palm Beach has taken over the sidewalk repairs on Southwest Avenue E.

--Heard a report that rain has delayed the sidewalk

Raiders stun Lancers

By Dean Jones

BELLE GLADE—The Glades Central football team gave notice to future opponents Friday night that unless they can guard against the big play, they can expect a long season and to join the ranks of John L. Leonard's Lancers.

The Raiders struck for five touchdowns Friday night in their 34-7 win over the Lancers and, except for a quarterback keeper by newcomer Jacob Rhames, the shortest score was from 52 yards out on an interception, with other touchdowns being made from 60, 80, and 90 yards.

Nor did head coach Ben McCoy's plays make any time in showing their potential. The first score of the game came on the first play from scrimmage, when Rhames hit Jessie Hester on a halfback pass and Hester hauled in the ball and scampered for a 60-yard TD to draw first blood with the game only nine seconds old.

Rhames substituted for last year's standout quarterback, Leonard Camel, who passed for more than 1,500 yards in 1979. Camel broke his passing arm during practice last Wednesday and McCoy chose Rhames, who came up from last year's junior varsity team, to stand in.

McCoy said before the game he had confidence in Rhames' ability to direct the ball club, a confidence which paid off when Rhames was involved in three touchdowns, two passes and a quarterback keeper. The other two TDs came on a pass interception by Steve Steed and an 80 yard punt return by Hester.

Hester also returned a second quarter punt 88 yards to paydirt but that score was called back on a clipping charge.

The Lancers' only score of the game came midway through the first quarter on a pass from Leonard quarterback Robert Schattie from the Glades Central 9 yard line.

The touchdown capped a 63-yard drive in nine plays that saw the Lancers plunging through the remainder of the Raider line for the first eight downs and Lancer running back George Alvarez picking up 32 yards on a critical fourth and two yards on the fifth.

After both teams held the ball through the remainder of the first and half of the second quarter, Leonard punted the ball from the Glades Central 45 to Hester on the Raider 12. Hester picked up blocking down the right side and raced 88 yards to go into the end zone standing up but that run was called back on the Raider 8 on a clipping penalty.

Glades Central once again showed the Lancers the meaning of the term "big play" on the next two downs, when Randi Rutledge took a handoff and slashed up the middle for 32 yards and Greg Bain picked up another 25 on the next play before he was hit and fumbled the ball. Keith Seymore picked off the fumble without losing a stride and made another four yards before he was finally brought down on the Lancer 38 yard strip.

Bain slammed through the Lancer line for another 17 yards and another first down in the next three running plays before a penalty flag put the Raiders on the Lancer five. Rhames lost a yard on the next play but Bain slashed down to half a foot from paydirt before being stopped, setting up Rhames' keeper. Rhames kicked his second PAT for the night and the Raiders led, 14-7 with 1:25 left in the first half.

Glades Central seemed determined to give the Lancers no rest, however, and three plays after the kickoff, Steed intercepted a Schattie pass on the Raider 48 and out ran the Leonard offensive team into the end zone. One more kick later by Rhames and the Raiders went into the half with a 20-7 lead.

Both teams fumbled away the ball during the first two series of play following the half and Leonard was forced to punt from the Raider 45 on the next series of downs.

The Raiders started their second possession of the third quarter on their own 9 yard line, with Bain picking up one yard on the 10 before Rhames connected with Ford for Glades Central's fourth touchdown of the night, on a 90-yard pass play. Rhames kicked his fourth PAT and the Raiders held a 27-7 lead with 2:50 left in the quarter.

Except for a couple of pass plays early in the final period, when the Lancer quarterback tried his best to connect first with Hester and then with Steed on what would have been two more interceptions if the two Raider defenders could have held onto the ball, that was the end of the action until the Lancers, at the end of an unsuccessful series, during which Schattie was knocked unconscious and taken to the hospital, punted out from their own 42.

Hester picked up the ball at his own 20, along with a flock of blockers along the right sideline, and raced all the way for another score. Rhames added another point with his kick after point and the final score of the was 34-7 with 5:36 left in the game.

Two series of downs later, the Raiders had hammered their way down to the Leonard 15 yard line and a first down when the clock ran out.

The Raiders next game will be at 8 p.m. Friday against North Shore, with the Mustangs hosting the game.

SPEEDY ALKASELTZER didn't have anything on Glades Central Raider Jessie Hester (42) Friday night as he caught a 60-yard touchdown pass and returned punts 88 and 80 yards. He is just starting his 88-yard ramble above and even if it was called back on a clip, it was impressive in the Raiders 34-7 win over Leonard.

Glades Day 12-Bishop Verot 0

Glades Day beats Bishop Verot

BELLE GLADE—The Glades Day School football team overpowered Bishop Verot in second half play Friday to win the Glades' first game of the year with a convincing 12-0 score. The game was played before a home crowd at Glades Day.

Neither team could score during the first half action, largely because of errors, but the Glades put it together and scored two touchdowns in the second half for the victory.

The offensive team rushed for 241 yards and gained 14 first downs for the Glades as the defensive team virtually shut down the Viking attack, holding Verot to 34 yards rushing and three first downs.

Glades Day's first score came on a four yard run by Bueno in the third quarter. Bueno teamed up with wide receiver Tommy Wilson for the second TD passing three yards for the score.

Defense was a key to the Glades win, with Scott Meredith, Andy Fontaine and Jason Shelton with making an interception. The leading tacklers were Victor Perez with 10 and Mark Allen with nine.

"This was a big win for us," head coach Byron Walker said, "especially with the game being a test of strength for the Glades and they showed their strength by winning with a solid team effort."

Glades Day travels to King's Academy in West Palm Beach Friday for their second game of the season.

Devils looking forward to Clewiston Tigers Friday

By Alma Henry, Staff Writer

PAHOKEE—The Pahokee High School fighting Devils are looking to a repeat of last year's 13-0 performance against the Clewiston High School Tigers Friday night, although they lost their season opener against the Boca Raton Bobcats 27-9 last Friday.

In what can be called a fight for the district championship, the Devils and Tigers match-up Friday night could go right down to the wire, with the game winner being decided in the closing minutes.

Head football coach Antoine Russell and the Class 2-A Devils were disappointed in Friday's loss against the Class 4-A Bobcats but the team is still anticipating a winning season.

Assistant Coach Eddie Rhodes said Friday's game is one of the most important games on the Devils' schedule.

"If we beat Clewiston, we feel we can win against the remainder of the district teams on our schedule and win the district title to go on to the state playoffs," said Rhodes.

"If we cannot beat Clewiston, then no other team in our district can," he added.

With kickoff scheduled at 8 p.m. on Cane Field in Clewiston, Russell and the Devils are working extra hard this week to iron out mistakes the Devils' made against the Bobcats.

The Devils' first points in a nonconference against the Bobcats when Boris Banks kicked a 22-yard field goal after an exchange of punts in the second quarter. Albert Gray and Michael Walls contributed to the drive with runs of 12 and 13 yards, respectively.

Boca wasted its first opportunity to score after blocking a Pahokee punt and recovering in the Blue Devils' 18 yard line in the first quarter but finally got untracked late in the second quarter and took the lead for good.

Quarterback Derrick Crudup, called the "Bionic Spino-more," for Boca Raton coach

Rod Montgomery, hit Dwight Carter with a pair of 13-yard passes before Mike McDermott went over for the score on a 66 yard run.

After a Pahokee punt, the Bobcats built their lead to 14-3 on the final play of the half when Crudup hit Pat Williams with a pass on the left side and he ran 35 yards to the score.

Early in the third quarter Crudup, with six minutes, passed 17 yards to Mark Steele, who caught the ball and fell backwards into the end zone.

The Bobcats' drive started with their second recovery of a fumbled punt, with the key play being a 15 yard pass to Crudup to tight end Danny Meyer.

Pahokee appeared headed back into the game when Gray took a pitch from Banks and hurried 16 yards down the left side to a touchdown, cutting Boca Raton's lead to 21-9.

However another Pahokee mistake made the end inevitable.

Specks are early

By Buddy Norris

BELLE GLADE—Well, speak fishermen, it's that time of year once again. Those tasty morsels we call specks are starting to arrive from parts unknown to frequent our dinner tables.

Large catches of speckled perch are now being taken in five to 20 feet of water along the Rim Canal just south of Shim's Fish Camp. Most are being taken from live minnows but fish are producing also.

Bass fishing is on the increase, with limits being taken around pepper grass beds and in the Rim Canal cuts. Live shiners have been the ticket but plastic worms and fire tiger cranks are fooling those lunkers.

Jimmy Rogers, a well known national tournament fisherman, weighed in a 9 1/2 pound lunker bass on Monday. Jimmy McMillan, also a ble for the Devils, when Pahokee in the fourth quarter trapped deep in their own territory called for a pihout to Gray around the right end. But Banks' pitch bounced off Gray's chest and into the hands of Danny Meyer, who had only to drive into the end zone to cap the scoring with 4:34 remaining.

Banks managed to hit only 4 out of 17 passes, for 39 yards and was intercepted once. Each team committed three turnovers. The Bobcats had 14 firstdowns to Pahokee's eight, and had 65 yards in penalties to the Devils 75.

The Devils rushed 149 yards and the Bobcats 175. Albert Gray led the Devils in yards with 62 yards in 11 carries, Calvin Pichens gained 41 yards. Terrence Banks, 9, followed by Michael Rawls with eight.

Lawrence Fitzgerald led the Devils in tackles with six and five assists. Alvin Hill followed with four, and Walter Johnson and Felix Thomas with three a piece.

well-known local and national tournament fisherman, caught a tarpon which tipped the scales at 9'10". This unusual catch was made in the Rim Canal on a Devil's Horse.

One never knows, does he?

Cincinnati's Joe Morgan and former New York Yankees star Mickey Mantle share the record for hitting safely in seven consecutive All-Star games. Due to player enthusiasm for the game, two All-Star games were played annually from 1959 thru 1962. The second 1961 game ended in a 1-1 tie due to rain.

RANDI RUTLEDGE picks up 32 yards on a handoff during second half action Friday night in Glades Central's 34-7 win over Leonard. The Raiders proved by plays like the one above they have the big play capability again this year.

Big Cypress regulation is changed

WEST PALM BEACH — Archers and muzzleloading gun hunters who plan to participate in special hunts in the Big Cypress Wildlife Management Area are being asked to note a regulation change.

The Florida Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission originally declined to allow bow hunters and muzzleloaders to carry their arms aboard airboats during the upcoming seasons.

This has been changed to allow airboaters who hunt with the bow or black powder gun to carry their arms. However, while they are in possession of a bow on board an airboat it must be either unstrung or cased. Muzzleloaders must be cased.

Disabled residents not required to buy license

WEST PALM BEACH—Under a bill passed by the Florida Legislature this year, permanently disabled residents will not be required to buy a hunting and fishing license.

Permanent licenses will be issued beginning October 1 to residents who can show proof of disability by the officers of the County Tax Collectors.

In the meantime, a letter documenting the permanent disability from the Veteran's Administration or two letters from different physicians attesting to permanent disability will be validated by the Tax Collector and used in lieu of a license.

These letters must be kept in the resident's possession while he is hunting or fishing and shown upon request to Wildlife Officers.

The only other sportsmen who are not required to possess a valid hunting or fishing license while aff are children under the age of 15 or senior citizens 65 and over.

Fees for hunting and fishing licenses range from $17.50 per year for a combination good state-wide down to $6.50 for a state fishing license.

Licenses are issued from the office of the County Tax Collectors and their sub-agents.

In addition to the basic license, sport hunters who intend to hunt on wildlife management areas this fall must purchase a $10.00 wildlife management area stamp. Archers and muzzleloaders must buy a $5.00 permit before participating in either the archery or black powder seasons.

Duck hunters, in addition to the regular hunting license, must buy both a federal and a state duck stamp. The federal stamp costs $7.50 and can be purchased at any post office while the state stamp is $3.25 and is available from the Tax Collector.

Berean Christian 38-Christian Day 10

Christian Day drops first game

BELLE GLADE — Christian Day School played a close first half in what coach Gus Harmon called the Crusaders' first full practice of the year but Berean Christian owned the second half Friday to give the Belle Glade team a 38-10 loss in its first outing of 1980. Harmon said the Crusaders were hurt by a lack of basic game skills, and the fact that, with only 16 players on the team, he hadn't been able to get up a full scrimmage during practice and he caused cramps became a factor in the second half. Outstanding player Kent Davis, for instance, was sidelined for virtually the entire third and fourth quarters, playing only six plays after he had before he was sidelined with severe cramps. Youth and inexperience also took its toll, Harmon said, noting that one of the starting wide receivers is an eighth grader, a freshman plays a key role as linebacker and a seventh grader saw a lot of action, professing to be "tired."

"I'm not taking any away from Berean," Harmon said. "They have a good team. They have 11 returning seniors and that made a lot of difference but I feel confident about the rest of the year. We play them again this year and when we do, it'll be a different outcome."

Neither team was able to score in the first quarter. Berean took the kickoff, was tallied on its first possession, followed by a turnover by the Crusaders at the Berean 45. The Patriots were threatening late in the period, however, when Robert Echols took away their momentum with a punt. The Crusaders had a Berean pass on the Christian Day 13.

Another threat in the second quarter was stopped when the Crusaders stiffened their line inside their own ten. With a first and ten situation on the Crusaders 20, Davis slashed through the Berean offensive line and lammed big Patriot running back Rosby Powell to the ground for a two yard loss.

Patriot halfback James Moffett carried the ball back to the Crus 1 on the next play but a score was not to be at that time. Berean was flagged before the third down for taking too much time, sending the ball back to the Crusader six. Powell cracked over center on third down to the four but on fourth and goal, the Crusader line held, stopping the big running back at the line of scrimmage, giving Christian Day the ball on their own four yard line.

The Patriots made up for it a few minutes later, however, after Christian Day had to punt on fourth down and on the first play from scrimmage. Powell carried the ball into the Crusader end zone from 32 yards out, making the first score of the game with 3:15 left in the half. Patriot quarterback Eddie Wagner handed the ball off to Powell on a two-point conversion running play and Powell gave the Patriots an 8 point lead going into the half.

The second half, for the Crusaders, was a disaster, with Berean running back Moffett scoring early on the first series of plays. A two-point conversion attempt failed and the Patriots led, 14-0. Three plays after the ensuing kickoff, Davis fumbled the ball on his own 21 yard line, setting up a TD five plays later. The two pointer was good and Berean led, 22-0 with 2:20 left in the period. The Patriots padded their lead early in the final quarter when Wagner connected on a ten yard pass play and Moffett scored again on a two-pointer, providing a 30-0 lead with 7:22 left.

The Crusaders scored their sole touchdown of the game slightly more than two minutes later, when quarterback Alex Morales found daylight on a broken play and streaked to the end zone from 39 yards out. Morales connected with Robert Echols for a two point pass conversion and the score was 30-8 with 5:13 left in the game.

Berean scored once again with 1:29 left in the game on a pass play followed up by another two point run but the final points of the game were scored when Morales threw a pass into the end zone that was intercepted by Moffett, who was promptly tackled for a two-point safety.

Harmon said Morales was the high point of the day on offense, completing 10 passes out of 19 attempts for 76 yards as well as rushing for 82 yards, including the 39 yard TD run.

Scott Hudson led the defense with 13 tackles, followed by Morales with six. Harmon said Hudson will be out of the Temple Christian game in Fort Myers this Friday, however, because of sprained ligaments.

Another high point, according to Harmon, was the support given by the fans. He said the school cleared more than this single game than all last season of nine games.

He said he hopes that support holds up through the rest of the season and added a caravan of supporters will follow the team to Fort Myers, gathering at the

CF week Sept. 21-27

Every day in the United States five children are born with cystic fibrosis, and every day three children die from cystic fibrosis.

Governor Bob Graham, in an attempt to inform people in Florida about this devastating disease, has proclaimed September 21-27 as Cystic Fibrosis Week in the state of Florida.

Cystic fibrosis is a respiratory and digestive disease for which there is no cure. Its symptoms include a chronic cough, recurrent lung infections, poor weight gain, and a salty taste to the skin.

CF Week is a time for alerting the public about these symptoms so that children born with cystic fibrosis can get medical care as soon as possible, giving them a chance for a better life.

Elks make appeal for Haitians

BELLE GLADE—The Everglades Lodge Number 1323 and Temple number 965 of L.B.P. Order of Elks of the World is presently soliciting non-parishable items to send to Haitians left homeless after Hurricane Allen swept through the tiny island of Haiti in August.

Exalted Ruler Charlie Mack Neal said the lodge is collecting any non-parishable food items, dry goods and men, women, and children's clothing. Mack Neal said the lodge will accept contributions from businesses as well as individuals.

Persons wishing to donate goods to the lodge must pack them in paste board boxes, and deliver the items to 200 W. 6th St., or Mae's Barber Shop at 118 S.W. 5th St. Persons unable to deliver the materials may call Mack Neal at 996-7960 or 996-3340 or Mrs. Mary Dandley.

"We can not let boys and girls, men and women continue to starve in Haiti when we, in America, discard tons of foods daily from our tables," said Mack Neal.

Up With People a possibility

BELLE GLADE—The 1981 Black Gold Jubilee may feature Up With People if discussion at the Jubilee Committee's first meeting for the upcoming festival pans out.

Up With People is the national variety show on TV, our casts of performing people from all over the world who travel a circuit. The Belle Glade Chamber of Commerce is planning to have the show go and, at that time, one of the casts was going to be in the area and would be available to weekend of April 10, 1981, to same weekend next year's edition of the Black Gold Jubilee is scheduled.

Most of the meeting was taken up with discussions on whether to hold the Up With People as part of the festival and gathering suggestions on Committee member Rupert Bubba" Mock Jr., who also serves as president of the hamber, said he would contact the Up With People looking agent before the next committee meeting on Oct. 27. Mock said he has also been in contact with the Sugar Cane Growers Cooperative of Florida and the Co-op has tentatively agreed to sponsor the group for a performance during the weekend.

During the discussion, the tentative decision, assuming the cast still has an open date at the time, is to have the performance held in McArthur Park on the Saturday afternoon of the Friday night, possibly in the Glades Central football stadium.

The Palm Beach County Academic Games League is getting in gear for the 1980-81 school year.

Shurman Waterman, Resource Teacher for ESAA Basic Project, will again be coordinating the Academic Games in the West Area. She will be assisted by Shirley Speakes. The games will be sponsored by ESAA Basic. Based on the success of last year's competition, this should be an even bigger year. West Area Superintendent Jack Redding said. Last year students from public and private schools competed in the West Area, and in May, five students represented the West Area in national competition in Exantion, Georgia. Social Studies will be the first series of games played this year. The first training session, on the game Prognosis, was conducted on Sept.

9 at Palm Beach Junior College, Glades Campus. The three rounds of the Social Studies Tournament will be on October 1, 8 and 15. The awards presentation will also be held on the 15th, at 3 p.m. in room SC 102. The public is always welcome.

Can Your Child Pass This Test For Spinal Curvature?

In May of 1979, Science News reported, "Recent findings suggest that perhaps as many as 10 percent of the children in the age group 6-13 have scoliosis." In fact, several states require that children aged 6-16 receive yearly scoliosis screening tests.

A lateral curvature of the spine, scoliosis, in serious cases, can produce psychological stress, detract from appearance and result in extensive physical consequences such as degenerative arthritis of the spine with increasing severe back pain and disability. It is the difference between a child who is healthy and a child who is disabled. Preventing the permanent deformity and disability caused by scoliosis is largely dependent upon early detection. Unfortunately, what many parents rely on is a "bad posture" is in reality often an indication of scoliosis. Here's a simple scoliosis detection test that you can give your child at home:

With the child standing straight, look at the back:

- Is one shoulder higher than the other?
- Is one shoulder blade more prominent than the other?
- When arms are hanging down, does one side of the waist, is the distance between arms and body on one side greater than the other?
- Does one hip seem to lean more forward than the other?
- Does the child seem to lean to one side?
- Does the child bend forward, arms hanging down, and one side of the back seems to curve more than the other?
- Do the arms or hips on the back in the side view?
- Is there a hump near the waist?

The answer is "Yes" to any of the above questions, then you are urged to seek an appointment for your child to receive a professional scoliosis screening test.

What condition is your boat in?

By Lorne Racicot
Another week has gone by and we are getting ever closer to fall and winter fishing. Just week we deal with some of the most common problems that can occur in the boat. This week we will deal with boat maintenance. Your boat is as important as your motor in getting you to where you want to go and getting you back, yet you see beautifully used and cared for motors on boats that are anything but. Algae-covered bottoms, leaded transoms and loose rudders are but a few of the many things that require but a small amount of time and effort to be put in proper condition.

The following list of checks is not intended to be complete in every respect. It is intended as a guideline in making your boat safe, enjoyable and ready for the job you want it to do. Bottoms. Boats left in the water over a period of time will develop an algae growth that will not only reduce the bottom and affect handling qualities, but are murder on fuel consumption. Heavy growth will increase fuel usage by 25% and more. Light growth will have its bad effects also. The time to remove this growth is immediately after the boat is taken from the water.

Once the algae dries it presents a formidable chore indeed and may result in a major bottom job. Boats stored on trailers are much less affected by growth but do oxidize to a greater or lesser degree. In any event they do have the slick bottom which is desired.

Cleaning is done in a number of ways. Among which, the most popular is the use of a hose and water that will literally blast the heavier growth. It usually won't get all of it but the remainder can be removed by the use of a regular scrubbing brush and good old fashioned elbow grease.

Many prefer, after cleaning, to put a wax type coating on the bottom. Your boat dealer can recommend one of the commercial compounds available. The use of an antifouling paint is an effective retardant to algae and other growth and, though expensive, lasts a long time with proper care.

The special care however to prepare the surface prior to painting exactly as the manufacturer states. Failure to do so will often cause the coating to come off a lot faster than you put it on.

Transom. A cracked or loose transom can cause a number of problems including not only major leaks but loss of a motor and flotation loss. All serious matter indeed.

The use of motors having a horsepower rating higher than that for which the transom and hull was designed is a dangerous practice indeed. Unfortunately, it occurs all the time. The Florida Marine Patrol and the Coast Guard people take a very dim view of this and it can lead to a citation. The corners of the transom are particularly vulnerable to cracking.

If your transom is found to be in this condition then have it corrected immediately. Preferably, this type repair should be done by a professional. An improper repair may result in the necessity to buy a whole new boat and could create an even worse situation.

Over the years I have seen excellent repairs done by myself. I have also seen many that shouldn't have been attempted in the first place. Most of the strain on a boat is at the transom and it must be in the best possible condition at all times.

Should no visible signs of cracking or other deterioration be present then try this. Whether the boat is in or out of the water, grasp the motor firmly in front and back and try to rock it on the transom. If movement is present it means a problem is developing if it hasn't already done so. The damage may be at the corners or it may be in the internal structure of the transom and cannot be detected in any way. If in doubt, it is best to see your dealer and have a new transom installed.

Dry rot is an ever present fact in the wooden core of most transoms and since it cannot be seen, you will serve your own best interests in making certain this condition does not exist.

Bow Eye or Ring. Continuous in and out ramming can seriously effect this item causing it first, to work loose and secondly, to pull out altogether. You can bet that it will always break at the wrong time. Like when you are ramping out after being on the water all day, are tired and the last thing you need is a problem like this. It happens more often than you think.

If a bow ring pulls loose at the wrong time it can hurt - sometimes seriously. When this situation exists the inner retaining block, usually wood, must be replaced and must be fitted exactly. If you are not sure of exactly how to do this, obtain professional service.

Gerry rigs may be acceptable in an emergency but that is the only time. Play it safe and ensure that this vital piece of equipment is in perfect condition.

Steering Cable. Where applicable it is necessary to check the plastic covering and if cracks are present and the visible parts of the cable show any signs of rust, no matter how minute, replace it. It may be the best investment you ever make.

Let's face it, today's high performance boats are just another way of describing a racing boat. And how many racing boats are driven time after time with no thought given to this particular equipment. Yet this situation exists all the time.

When the cable breaks at high speed all control is lost and anything can happen. Many, to whom this has happened, are now statistics. You just can't be too careful. Any boat that is equipped with a motor of 100 h.p. or more or one that can do 40 m.p.h. should be equipped with a dual system. A lot of boats in this category are. A lot are not and this is asking for trouble.

Bilge Pumps. This is one item that is about as handy a gadget you can install in a boat. They are compact, dependable and use very little current and then only when actually activated, even the automatics. If you have one in your boat it is a simple matter to remove the base and look for debris or other foreign matter which may impede its performance.

For boats that are in wet storage, an automatic is the most popular and efficient. It only draws current when the internal float is activated by rising water in the boat and turns itself off when the water has been pumped out.

For those whose boat is only in the water when actually being used then a manual pump will suffice. In this situation you are in the boat should it be necessary to use it and a flick of the switch sets it in operation.

Don't forget to turn it off when you're finished with it. Failure to do so will drain your battery. And, believe me, it does happen.

Hull. All fitting should be checked to see that they are seated correctly and that nuts, bolts and/or screws are properly tightened. If rusted or otherwise weakened by corrosion or bent, replace them. Examine all electric wiring, bulbs and connections. Repair or replace any item requiring it. Boats built of fiberglass (the most popular) tend to oxidization of the surfaces exposed to the elements.

To correct this, it is only necessary to wash the surfaces thoroughly and then use a restorative. These compounds usually contain a wax as well as a cleaning agent. They are easily applied and it is amazing how they will restore the finish and protect it without a lot of strenuous effort. Your boat dealer can recommend several available.

Boats having vinyl floor or seat upholstery should be thoroughly and frequently checked for cracking, tears or other defects which can materially reduce their life. If no serious damage is present, apply a restorative and preservative such as Son of A Gun or Armor All.

It will not only bring back the original color but will extend the life of the vinyl immeasurably. Canvas tops should be periodically examined for rips, tears or evidence of mildew. Have the rips or tears repaired and ask your dealer to recommend a good canvas preservation which, when properly applied will keep it in good condition longer than usual.

Safety Equipment. Space is not sufficient to go into this subject at length. Every boat must be equipped with a personal flotation device for each occupant. Very importantly, this device must be in good condition, good enough to pass inspection by state agencies and/or the Coast Guard. If the devices are torn, or have lost their firmness, replace them. I can only suggest that you do. The Coast Guard will demand that you do - and immediately. Make sure that your P.F.C.'s are of the type required for your particular craft.

Staff photos by Lorne Racicot

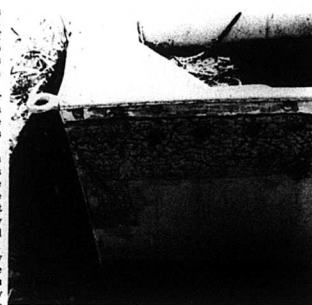

IT CAN HAPPEN to you too. A burst of fuel line primer bulb resulted in a tow call.

Anchors and anchor ropes should be examined for fraying or other indication of deterioration. If not in top condition, replace. Rope is less expensive to replace than lost anchors.

Carry a paddle or an oar or oars with you. It is a requirement and should not be neglected. A few simple tools should always be on board. Even if they only consist of an adjustable crescent wrench, a screw driver or two and needle nose and regular pliers, the latter with a wire cutting slot preferably. They certainly don't take up much room and can be very helpful at times.

Where applicable, carry spare shear pins. They are often hard to borrow when you are out on the water and really need one. Extra light bulbs and other small, but necessary items, should also be on board. They can be stored in any number of places on most boats and they are great to have in time of need.

Area fishing report

By Lorne Racicot

Information coming in from all around the Lake indicates increased fishing activity, not only by fishermen but also by the fish.

Most operators I talked to were of the opinion that the long spell of rain and lower air temperatures resulted in cooler waters and subsequently the fish were busy feeding more often and for longer periods.

Bass fishing has been very good, bluegill and shell-crackers good and crappie (speckled perch) fair. Many of the areas have exceptionally clear water and the fish are somewhat spooky.

Areas of off-color water appear to provide the most action as far as bass are concerned. Panfish beds are frequently spotted in the clear water areas with the 'gills' opting for live crickets and the 'crackers' for live worms. Bass have been caught to 10 pounds with any number of fish in the four to six range being taken. The 'gills' are running to good size on the average and 'crackers' in the one pound range have been fairly plentiful.

Crappie are being taken on live Missouri Minnows and jigs. Those using jigs are fishing from 30 to 36 inches down and the minnows produce best at depths of 6 to 12 feet. All manner of lures have taken Bass including live shiners, spinner baits, plastic worms, top water plugs, crank baits and spoon and skirt combos. The best catches of bass have been in the peppergrass beds on the flats, the needle grass areas along shore and on the points of islands.

The following reports will give you an idea of the type of catches being made. At Slim's Camp (Belle Glade - Charles Corbin) plastic worms have produced consistently this past week, especially in the peppergrass. The points off Kreamer Island are holding a lot of fish and lures such as Hot Spots and Spine Beis are effective here. Billy Brewer of Belle Glade came in with a limit, the largest being 10 pounds even. The Rim Canal is still producing bluegills of good size on live crickets. Shellcrackers to a pound and better are taking live worms. The canal is also producing crappie in depths to 12 feet.

Mrs. Marvin Vance of Clewiston Marina says bass fishing has been very good. Fish to six pounds are being caught. The peppergrass beds on the flats are the place to look. Live shiners and plastic worms are the best producers. Some bluegill are being caught on live crickets, mostly in areas showing some bedding activity.

There are also some bedding shellcrackers and live worms are getting some nice fish.

Big Bass Lodge (Lakeport - Mary Tindell). Bass and all three varieties of Panfish have been active. The Monkey Box and Monshine Bay areas are holding a lot of fish in the 3 to 5 pound range. The biggest caught was by Sid Moss of Moore Haven who brought one of 8 pounds dockside. Theo. Chaoles of Sarasota had a good catch of fish in the 4 to 4 pound range. Bill Jones of Punta Gorda brought in bass to 5 pounds using plastic worms. Some bluegill and shell-cracker were caught with one of the best catches made by a Mr. Braddock of Perry, who had a limit of large 'gills' taken on live crickets. Some crappie are being caught on live Missouri Minnows in the vicinity of the Twin Markers. So there you have it. The fish are there. They are also eager. Got 'em!

Future of fishing

Continued degradation of the freshwater resources of the state has prompted the Game and Freshwater Fish Commission to take a comprehensive look at the future of the fisheries resource.

To this end, a meeting will be held Friday, Sept. 19, at the Palm Beach Ocean Hotel, 2830 South Ocean Boulevard, Palm Beach at 9 a.m.

The five-member board will hear a report from the Division of Fisheries on the current status and future trend of the fisheries resources of the state.

Personnel from the division are expected to recommend to the Commissioners measures which can be taken to help alleviate the growing degradation of the aquatic habitat. The public is invited to attend.

Candidate urges America First

BELLE GLADE—It's time Americans should start putting Americans first, Gary Steven Israel, the Democratic candidate for State House of Representatives, District 80, told local Rotarians Tuesday.

Israel said the concept of putting America first had strong support in the '40s and '50s but lost strength during the '60s and '70s. "and now we have 50 hostages in Iran and our embassies all around the world are under fire."

Another problem Israel

mentioned is the influx of Cuban and Haitian refugees, their cost to Floridians (the estimated $20 million cost to Floridians in social and educational services) and the establishment of Miami and possibly other areas as officially bilingual.

In other areas, Israel said, he could see little difference between the situation today and 50 years ago. "when my ancestors immigrated to the United States and couldn't speak a word of English."

Florida should start concentrating on the importance of private ownership of land, noting that developers are continuously buying more and more agricultural land and moving west.

Not enough emphasis is being put on education. He said a greater emphasis on education would cut the crime rate and the number of people on welfare.

The state needs to restructure its taxes. Israel said he would like to see the 2 per cent tourist tax now being levied in six counties to be levied statewide, with the proceeds going towards building and maintaining roads.

"The tourists use the roads," he said. "Why shouldn't they pay for them? There is nothing we owe the tourists, except to be polite to them and there is nothing we owe refugees, who come over on a boat illegally."

He favors a migrant labor bill in the state legislature.

He favors an increased unemployment compensation payments but also favors, "some type of workfare."

Chamber of Commerces pursue speakers bureau and film

BELLE GLADE—The Belle Glade and Pahokee Chamber of Commerce, if they follow through with a meeting held here last week, will be cooperating in setting up a speakers bureau and possibly shooting a film to be used to enhance the Glades' image outside the area.

Chamber President Rupert "Bubba" Mock Jr. reported to the local Chamber's board of directors on the initial steps taken and Pahokee Chamber President Simon Train said he was sure the Pahokee Chamber would cooperate as far as possible.

Mock said the idea for the speakers bureau and the film came out of a meeting held earlier with District Five County Commissioner Bill Bailey in the wake of critical newspaper articles published in Fort Lauderdale and West Palm Beach about an NBC television documentary on migrant farm workers.

Mock said he was sure the Chamber would have the support of the agricultural industry in creating the film.

Train said he envisions a 60 minute film with 15 and 30 minute excerpts, so it could be shown to various groups around the coastal areas in as flexible a format as possible.

Train said he has contacts with Channel 34 television station and believes the station's studio may cooperate. He said he believes the total cost of the film would run between $5,000 and $10,000.

"I like the idea of a speakers bureau too," Train said. "I would be willing to serve in it as much as I can and I believe we have three or four directors who would serve at their own expense."

Mock said he would like to see a speaker accompany the film when it is shown to civic clubs and other groups to answer questions and complement the information contained in the film.

Going a step further, Train said he would like to see the two Chambers cooperate in one or two joint ventures a year, perhaps once in Pahokee and once in Belle Glade.

"This might be the first area we can work together for the benefit of both Chambers and both communities," he said. Train said WIRK and Country K radio stations, where he is a disc jockey, also has plans to begin airing a weekly program on the Glades, the people here and its history.

"They've (newspapers on the coast) been writing about us," he went on. "People know we're out here. Now all we've

Kiwanians told crime is up

By Scott Ellis

BELLE GLADE—Stressing that criminal activity in unincorporated areas has risen by nearly 90 per cent since Sheriff Richard Willie took office nearly four years ago, Democratic candidate for sheriff Frank Flannery attacked his foe's record at the Kiwanis Club meeting Thursday.

Flannery attacked Sheriff Willie's crime prevention record, saying that crime in seven major categories in unincorporated areas has increased 88 per cent during the last four years. While criticized in editorials in several Palm Beach County newspapers recently saying he used misleading statistics, Flannery stuck to his barrage.

According to Flannery, motor theft is up 50 per cent; larceny, 25 per cent; burglary, 36; robbery, 61; rape, 33; and murder, 115. Only in one category, aggravated assault, has the crime rate dropped, he said. Aggravated assault's rate has dropped 1.7 per cent, he said.

Flannery, 42, also blasted the present sheriff's department for what he termed as its "ineffective" campaign against drug abuse.

"As far as I know, nothing's really being done to fight drug traffic in our schools," Flannery said. "And one of the first things I'd do would be to take pot-smuggling dogs into our schools."

Flannery, Requesta chief of police, is originally from northern Illinois. He and wife Dianne have three children, Colleen, Patrick and Thomas. He spent several years in law enforcement in Illinois, including stints as a state policeman, detective, patrolman, and narcotics investigator.

"I didn't like the air pollution in Chicago. I finally got tired of it, got a chance to come south to Requesta, and took it," Flannery said.

Other problems Flannery said need to be addressed in the county concern the county's high unsolved murder rate and the lack of female officers available for counseling female rape victims. Several other family problems could be handled by female officers too, Flannery added.

More gun control laws aren't needed, Flannery said, responding to a query.

"There are plenty of laws on the books, which, if enforced, are adequate. No extra laws are needed," he said. He didn't say, however, why the laws aren't enforced or if they are enforced.

Other goals Flannery has said he supports are:

—Developing a professional planning system for the sheriff's office.

—Establishing a cost-reduction incentive program.

—Establishing an "Operation Identification" program.

—Creating tactical, retirement value, construction site and high-crime neighborhood patrols.

—Making citizens aware of how the sheriff's department works.

Flannery's law enforcement education is extensive. He has degrees from Governors State University in Park Forest, Ill.; the FBI National Academy, Quantico, Va.; and the Federal Bureau of Narcotics School in Washington, D.C.

He has several other degrees from various schools in Illinois, Louisiana, Missouri, Massachusetts, the Bahamas and Florida.

Test dates given

PAHOKEE—The 1980-81 school year is just beginning, but juniors and seniors at Pahokee High School and other high schools across the county are already facing some big decisions.

One of those decisions is what to do after graduation—whether to go on to school, get a job, or try to do both.

Playing an important role in the students' postsecondary education and career planning will be guidance counselors, parents, friends, and a national testing service called the ACT Assessment Program. Designed to provide guidance information for education and career planning, the widely used program is recommended for use by student applicants at more than 2,700 colleges and universities.

Pahokee High School students will have five opportunities during the 1980-81 school year to make use of the national program, which consists of four tests and a two-part questionnaire. Students complete the questionnaire at home as part of the registration process, and then take the battery of tests at area test centers on any of five weekend national test dates, explained Vance Denton, Coordinator of Guidance.

The five 1980-81 national test dates and the corresponding registration deadlines are:

Test Date	Registration Deadlines
Oct. 18, 1980	Sept. 19
Dec. 13, 1980	Nov. 14
Feb. 14, 1981	Jan. 16
March 28, 1981	Feb. 27
June 13, 1981	May 15

The basic student fee for using the ACT Assessment is $8.50. It takes about three hours to complete the ACT Assessment's four exams, which cover four subject areas: English, math, social studies, and natural sciences.

Denton said the test scores provide an assessment of general education development, while the questionnaire information focuses on academic and nonacademic accomplishments and interests, as well as career and educational plans.

Students' ACT Assessment reports are sent to colleges designated by the respective students.

TUNING IN TO ENGLISH during language lab sessions is one way foreign-language speaking students develop an "ear" for proper pronunciation and inflection. Glades Central High School students

Bilingual learning . . . English is only half of it

By AILSA DEWING

Each fall more than 200 non-English speaking children enter the bilingual program in western Palm Beach County schools.

Most of them are the sons and daughters of migrant farmworkers. Spanish-speaking, the children must first learn English so they can be integrated into the school system and obtain the education that can broaden the opportunities available to them as young adults.

But when school opened this year, bilingual educators were confronted with new and perplexing problems created by the influx of Cuban refugees during the summer and the entrance of Haitian children into the program.

Integrating the Cuban students, most of whom arrived without previous school records, is a time-consuming process, of finding the grade-level they fit into. But the arrival of the Haitian children has added a new dimension to bilingualism. The students speak Creole — a language which is neither French nor Spanish and there are no Creole-speaking teachers in the Glades.

Overseeing the bilingual program in the West area is Harma Miller, a native of Belle Glade who earned her bachelor's degree in Spanish and French and her master's degree in general linguistics. Before being named bilingual coordinator for West area schools she spent 11 years as a teacher in the bilingual program.

During the first days of school, Mrs. Miller was thrown into recruiting as many Spanish-English translators as she could find to start the screening process of the newly-arrived Cuban children.

No Creole-English bilingual teachers were to be found but one man who served as an interpreter is now seeking special emergency certification and Mrs. Miller is learning the language herself to bridge the gap.

She described Creole as a complex language in which nuances in inflection affect the meanings of phrases and the written and spoken language differ.

The recruiting of only one Creole teacher is but a partial solution, however. The pupils are spread around through the seven Glades schools offering bilingual instruction: Gladesview, Gove, Lake Shore Elementary, Lake Shore Middle, and Glades Central High in Belle Glade, Rosenwald Elementary in South Bay and the Pahokee Elementary School.

The usual ratio is about 20 students for each teacher and teacher's aide, but that is assuming that all the students are in one school, she points out.

Meanwhile the children are being taught as best as possible.

"It's not necessary to speak the language to teach — there are other means of communicating ideas, but it requires special skills and learning," Mrs. Miller explains. "Not all teachers who are bilingual themselves make good bilingual teachers."

But even while the program wrestles with the problem of dealing with the Haitian children who are enrolled, efforts are being made to bring an untold number of unenrolled Haitian school-age children into the system.

They are the children of Haitian parents whose immigration status is not yet resolved or whose dealings with government officials since their arrival in the U.S. may have left them wary.

"Many Haitian parents don't understand that they must enroll their children in school," Mrs. Miller says. Consequently, school authorities are trying to reach the Haitian refugee parents by distributing flyers and through contacts with other social agencies serving the Haitian community.

Palm Beach County's bilingual program is "transitional," according to Mrs. Miller. "Many people think we are teaching students two languages — their native language and English — but this is not so."

She explains that students below the high school level learn English as they are taught other subjects and after one year are usually ready to leave a bilingual learning center and join the regular English-speaking classes.

At the high school level, however, incoming students concentrate for a year on learning English before beginning any other academic studies.

Know as ESL or English as a Second Language students, the young people face even more problems than learning a new language, says Mrs. Miller.

They have the problems of adapting to a new country, social and economic pressures, and being unable to speak the language damages their self-esteem — makes them feel inferior, she explains.

As a result, Mrs. Miller says, the dropout rate among bilingual students each year is approximately 85 percent, and so far there are no solutions.

"We can only try to minimize the pressures while they're learning and re-enforce their self-esteem by helping them to develop their other talents and interests," she says.

will explain the duties.

Plans will be made for coming activities. Refreshments will be served.

... and whatnot

by Ailsa Dewing

After a dozen or more years of living in various sections of the state of Paradise — known as Florida to outsiders and other exiles — I've concluded that what we most need is a statewide cultural exchange program.

I don't mean one that sends the young folks off to Paris or Guatemala to go native but one that trades off young ones from Ocala with Miami Beachites, or sends a Pensacolan to see how things in Key West are.

Floridians love Florida. Even transplanted Floridians do. Make no mistake about that. But what most Floridians don't seem to love and appreciate is anywhere else in Florida they don't happen to live, work, and claim their homestead exemption.

For example. Every so often I like to shinny up a palm tree and holler: "I love Miami. It's the most beautiful city in Florida."

And don't think that isn't taking my life in my hands. I've been pelted with oranges. Whomped on the head with sugarcane. Dodged conch shells and been gagged with whole lettuce heads. People in New York, Philadelphia and Montreal may love Miami (and they do) but hardly any Floridian north of the Dade-Broward line has a good word to say about The Magic City.

And speaking of Broward, that's probably the only county where Ft. Lauderdale isn't put down as Ft. Lauderdale.

Not that Miami doesn't think it's some punkins — it does. Just the word "Pahokee" can get a laugh.

Everybody seems to have kind words for Orlando, the Micky Mouse City. But just wait til the Orlandoans latch on to a pro football team and there'll go the era of good feeling.

But Orlandoans don't like Miami. And they can put an air when talking about the Glades, too, with descriptions of "down around the levee" and "out in the canefields."

And so it goes. Floridians love Florida. But selectively. A kind of territorial superiority. West Palm Beach thinks the county ends at 20-mile-bend and the western end wishes it did, with WPB in someone else's country. And everybody south of Jacksonville thinks that's the immigration check-point for illegal Georgians.

And that's why we need a cultural exchange program. One that sends a kid from Miami or Tampa to the Glades for a season or fishing the big lake, feeding up on fresh vegetables and being a part of a small town. For the rest of his life he's think of himself as "a good ole boy." (I guess something needs to be done for the "good ole boys.")

And let's send kids from all over the state to Miami for whirl around the Seaguarium, the zoo, and Monkey Jungle. Let them watch the spectacular purple and gold sunset and see the city skyline at dusk, fish off the South Beach Pier when the mackeral are running, go surfing at Haulover Beach, and shrimp by lantern light off the causeways and they'll know what the real Miami is all about.

As for me, I should be shipped off to be educated about the Panhandle. Is it true they're all rednecks up there? Wadda ya mean, you'll hit me with a fat lighter knot?

Call for health volunteers

If you're concerned about the environment, clean water, fishfills, good nutrition for the elderly and promoting health and well-being for everyone in the community, Palm Beach County Health Department needs your help.

In an effort to relieve the strain on health department costs and use professional personnel where they're most needed, a volunteer corps is being organized in the Glades area.

Needed are Good Samaritans to help prepare, file, and process records in the various service agencies of the health department, as well as dentists, pharmacists, lawyers, biologists, chemists, and engineers, and other professionals, willing to donate four hours a week to community health care.

Heading the volunteer service recruitment is Nataleah Nachman, a volunteer worker for many causes over the past 40 years until her recent appointment as volunteer coordinator for the health department.

"We need about 50 people who are willing to serve at least four hours a week," says Mrs. Nachman.

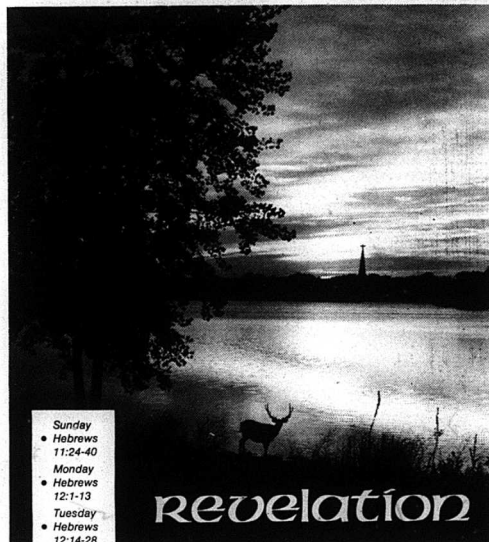

"All we ask is that they be dependable, dedicated to promoting health and preventing illness in the community and 17 years of age or older."

The greatest immediate need is for clerical workers and people able to speak Spanish or Creole as well as English, according to Mrs. Nachman.

Because of the number of areas served by the county's health services, volunteers can choose their field of endeavor.

It is so much more beautiful than words. The sun touches the lake to bronze and the sky is a wonderful blend of apricot and mauve and burnished orange. The big buck silhouetted at the water's edge seems to be looking right at you. For the moment, at least, you are both unafraid.

You store this sight in your memory, to be dusted off on days when the view is cloudy. Remembering, you realize anew that there's something so much bigger than all of us. No man could have made that lake, nor that sky, nor that deer, nor all that glory.

Nature is an ultimate teacher. It would seem, in fact, as if God must have chosen nature as a kind of reflection. Your place of worship is a reflection, too. Why not take a look at it?

Taking it From the Top

By REV. DAVID T. EVANS
Everglades Presbyterian Church

The month of August was a prologue to the action of Nov. 4, the election of the President of the United States. The numerous candidates for the presidency have narrowed to about five.

The political conventions have set the stage for campaigning action. The first 18 verses of the Gospel according to John set the stage for the coming of Jesus Christ, the Word of God in action.

In this Prologue to God's Action, John explains the pre-existence of Christ and the relation of Christ to John the Baptist (the herald of the King) and His people and Christ as the Word of God, dwelling among us and the bringer of "Grace and Truth."

Christ, the Word, didn't begin to be in the beginning, but already existed. He was not only the Son eternal but He was creator and the light of men.

John the Baptist came only to announce the coming of Christ and prepare the way by bearing witness to Him as the "Light of the World." Even with the dramatic and authoritative announcement of John, most of Jesus' own people would not receive Christ.

John the Gospel writer is trying to show his readers the greatness of God's Word, His Son, even Jesus Christ. He says the Word dwelt among us. "Dwelt" is literally translated as tabernacled. This would imply that God in the Word lived with us as He did in the Tabernacle in the wilderness.

This implication is that Christ did not merely observe, but lived in human condition. God came in human flesh-body and soul - to share our life, its problems, pressures, and pleasures.

Finally, the Word was Jesus Christ who brought "Grace and Truth." Moses gave the law which was fulfilled by Christ and completed with "Grace and Truth."

Grace is the unearned favor of God, or His unmerited extravagant goodness. This is given freely without condition or expected response by the recipient.

Truth is reality which can be only in God and Christ is the revelation.

John's Prologue identifies the main characters, John the Baptist and the Word, the Son Jesus Christ, John the Baptist and the Word.

The tension in this action will be and is between the light of God and the darkness of the world. We are told that Light will prevail and some will believe and become the children of God.

The action is about to begin. There will be a dramatic announcement which sows the seeds for action and reaction. Some will follow and others will begin to plot destruction.

The Prologue points to the ultimate victory of Christ over the darkness of the world. In this we must trust for it is our hope for all of life!

Paramedics earn State licenses

BELLE GLADE — The State of Florida Health and Rehabilitative Services has issued State Paramedic licenses to five of Glades General's Ambulance Division personnel. A score of 80 percent is needed to pass the state exam.

New state Paramedics are Ronald Kelley, Jamie Tracey, Paul M. Gressinger, Larry Hayward and Artie Delvala.

Paramedics work in basic and advanced life support systems. They can administer medication, upon physician's orders through a telemetry system, and defibrillate patients using shock paddles.

An Advanced Cardiac Life Support System is due to become operative at Glades General Hospital within the next two weeks. This piece of equipment allows the Emergency Room physician an avenue to communicate with the Paramedic while in the ambulance as he administers care to the patient.

A 1979 graduate of Glades Central High School, Clark joined the Marine Corps in August 1979.

In Service

Marine Pfc. Donald E. Clark, Jr., son of Donald E. and Ellen A. Clark of 527 N.W. 14th St., Belle Glade, recently participated in training and "Combined Arms Exercise 7-80" in California's Mojave Desert.

He is a member of Battalion Landing Team 2/2, Second Marine Division, Camp Lejeune, N.C.

We are brought with a price. The blood of the Lord Jesus Christ is the price with which we are brought. Receive your Salvation-God's grace unto you.

Christian Thoughts

By Willie Jo Young
Miracle by Faith Revival Center

What is grace? Grace is God's unmerited love, given unto us, an undeserving world. What is God's unmerited love, given unto us? God's unmerited love is the Lord Jesus Christ.

"Lord," This is Jesus kindly name that stands for rulership over all things. He is God. He has all power in heaven and in the earth.

"Jesus" - This is the Lord's personal name, his human name. The word of God became flesh, therefore, he needed a human name. "In the beginning was the word (the Lord Jesus) and the word was with God, and the word was God." John 1:1.

Jesus human name means "Savior." Jesus is the one who died on the tree to save us from sin, to give us eternal life.

"Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ and thou shalt be saved." Acts 16:31.

"Christ," This is the Lord's official name. It means "the anointed one."

God's grace unto the world is the Lord Jesus Christ. Lord Jesus as our Savior for salvation. We must believe on Jesus and turn from our sins to receive salvation.

"But as many as received Him, to them gave Him power to become the sons of God, even to them that believe on His name." John 1:12 when you decide to accept God's grace salvation:

1. (Galatians 2:20) Christ comes to live in your heart. I am crucified with Christ; nevertheless I live yet not I, but Christ liveth in me; and the life which I now live in the flesh I live by the faith of the Son of God, who loved me, and gave himself for me.

2. (Ephesians 1:7) "In whom we have redemption through his blood; the forgiveness of sins, according to the riches of his grace." Your sins are forgiven.

3. 2 Corinthians 5:17) "Therefore if any man be in Christ he is a new creature."

Old things are passed away behind, all things are become new. You become a new creature.

4. (1 Corinthians 6:19) The Holy Ghost begins to live in your heart. What? Know ye not that your body is the temple of the Holy Ghost which is in you, which ye have of God, and ye are not your own.

We are brought with a price. The blood of the Lord Jesus Christ is the price with which we are brought. Receive your Salvation-God's grace unto you.

Thanksgiving service set for Rev. Davis

BELLE GLADE—A prayer and thanksgiving service for the Rev. Clifford Davis will be held Sunday, Sept. 21, at 7:30 p.m. in the Wesleyan Holiness Community Church, 331 SW 4th St.

The service is being sponsored by the Belle Glade Ministerial Association and the Christian Business Men's Association with the offering to go to the Rev. Davis and his family.

Holy Land trip is planned

BELLE GLADE—An 11-day trip to the Holy Land, Athens, and Corinth is being organized by the Rev. Robert Atkins, pastor of the First Baptist Church.

"More than a tour, it will be a spiritual and teaching experience as well," said Rev. Atkins. Traveling with the tour will be seminary professors and archeologists who will add their expertise. College and seminary credits may be earned by students accompanying the group, he said.

The tour will leave Jan. 6, 1981, and spend nine days in the Holy Land plus two days in Athens and Corinth visiting the sites where St. Paul ministered. First class accommodations will be booked.

Brochures are available to anyone interested and additional information is available from the church office, 305-996-5596.

In recent months the Davis family has faced a number of medical problems, the pastor and two of the Davis children having undergone surgery.

The sermon at Sunday night's service will be given by the Rev. David Evans, pastor of Everglades Presbyterian Church and president of the local ministerial association.

The Rev. Henry Fuse, Jr., pastor of the Church of God of Prophecy, is in charge of the music.

Heading arrangements for the Christian Business Men is J.B. Simmons, association president.

Cook's Choice

Karen Hatten, an enthusiastic member of the Pahokee BPW, for which she serves as sunshine chairman, the Pahokee Church of God, and as a member of the Pahokee Elementary School Advisory Committee, shares a recipe with us this week.

Karen is a Glades girl. Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth L. Warren of Lake Harbor, she was raised in South Bay, and is married to J. Ray Hatten, III. Karen is employed by R.L. Hatten, MD, and enjoys gardening and embroidering in her spare time.

Her no-bake recipe is simple and mixes tartness and sweetness for a unique flavor.

ORANGE SNOWBALLS

- 2 3/4 cups vanilla wafers (1 box)
- 1/4 cup melted margarine
- 3 cups powdered sugar
- 1/4 cup frozen orange juice concentrate, thawed

- 1 cup chopped nuts
- 2 Tbsps. soft margarine milk
- Shredded coconut

Crush vanilla wafers with a rolling pin and mix crumbs with melted margarine, 2 cups sugar, orange concentrate, and nuts. Shape into small balls. Combine soft margarine with remaining sugar and enough milk to moisten. Dip balls in sugar mixture and roll in coconut. Refrigerate until firm. Store in an airtight container in the refrigerator.

Finans wed 60 years

BELLE GLADE-Married Sept. 23, 1920 in Chicago, Ethel and James Finan of 816 S.E. 2nd St., will celebrate their 60th wedding anniversary Sunday with children, grandchildren, and great grandchildren.

Residents since 1966, the Finans operated the Quality Loan Co. on Avenue A for some time after "Mr. Jim" retired from the auto sales business. He is a Navy veteran of World War One.

The Finans are the parents of one daughter, Mai Rita Zumpf, Belle Glade; and grandparents of Mike Zumpf, Belle Glade; Bill and Tom Zumpf, both of West Palm Beach; and Jane Messer, Charlotte, N.C. They have four great grandchildren including David, Heidi, and Laura Zumpf of Belle Glade.

The Finans have been active members of the community. Mr. Jim is a member of the Belle Glade Country Club and St. Philip of Benizi Church. Ethel Finan is a communicant of St. John Episcopal Church and a member of the Glades General Hospital Auxiliary.

Int'l club forming at PBJC-G

BELLE GLADE-An international club open to both students and area residents is being formed at the Palm Beach Junior College Glades campus.

All interested people are invited to attend an organizational meeting at 7 p.m. Monday, Sept. 22, to be held in the PBJC-G conference room.

The purpose of the club is to promote friendship and cultural exchange among residents from foreign countries.

For information, contact Dr. Robert Gerald, 996-3055.

A short orientation program introduces a volunteer to the ongoing program after which he or she is assigned to work directly with the professional staff.

"We do ask for a year's commitment," Mrs. Nachman said, "so that volunteers can become proficient."

Presently donating their time to community health needs are three volunteers: Rickie McCoy, Helen L. Voege, and Nancy Smith.

A listing of the health needs of Glades area residents served by the county would fill a book - and it does - The Annual Report of the Palm Beach County Health Department.

But health-minded citizens who want to help in any area may contact Mrs. Nachman at 996-1900 for all the information they want.

African soiree planned

PAHOKEE-The Ladies in Unity Club of Pahokee met Sunday, Sept. 14 at the Padgett Center to formalize plans for an upcoming African Soiree the club is planning on Nov. 22.

Mrs. Caroline Johnson, the club reporter, said the African Soiree an annual event for the club promises to be an evening of cultural awareness.

In addition to making plans for the Soiree, The Ladies in Unity showered club members, Dollie Mae Hines and Juanita Williams with a birthday party.

Mrs. Laura Clevin, president of the organization said the club has been invited to worship with the New Macedonia Baptist Church on Oct. 26 in observance of women's day at the local church.

In beginning its charitable donations for the fall season Mrs. Johnson said the club also donated funds to a needy family in Pahokee at the Sunday meeting.

Following business meeting, Mrs. Johnson said the club had a social hour and the hostess served cake and ice cream for the birthday party and the club members chatted about the summer trip to Busch Gardens in Tampa.

The Ladies in Unity's next meeting will be Oct. 12 at 3 p.m., at the Padgett Island Center.

Members attending the meeting included, President Laura Clevin, Mrs. Mary Jackson, Mrs. Caroline Johnson, Ms. Juanita Williams, Mrs. Hermana Moutrie, Mrs. Deloris Robertson, Mrs. McNola Cummings, Mrs. Dorothy Johnson, Mrs. Dollie M. Hines, Mrs. Annie R. Boldin, Mrs. Ethel Barnes, Mrs. Lizzie Turner, and Mrs. Willie Bell Guyton, hostess.

Markham-Anderson vows exchanged

Flowers and candles decorated St. Philip of Benizi Church for the wedding of Linda Jean Anderson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Anderson, and Brandon Lee Markham, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wilford Markham.

The double ring ceremony was performed Aug. 22 by the Rev. Frank O'Laughlin. Mrs. Helen Youngblood was organist and Terry Collier, soloist.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of satin illusion trimmed with Chantilly lace and seed pearls. She carried a bouquet of peach carnations.

The peach tones were carried out in the gowns, bouquets and picture hats of the bridal attendants. Bobbie Lee Markham, sister of the groom, served as maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Ana Baez, Paula Anderson, sister of the bride, and Brenda Davis, sister of the groom. Jackie Davis, the groom's niece was flower girl.

The bridegroom wore an off-white tuxedo and his attendants wore white tuxedo jackets and brown trousers. Wayne Luce acted as best man. Ushers were Basil Markham, brother of the groom, and Charles and Bill Anderson, brothers of the bride. Christopher Campbell, son of Mr. and Mrs. David Campbell, was ringbearer.

Peach and white streamers, wedding bells and floral arrangements decorated the municipal civic center for the reception following the wedding ceremony.

Serving were Lurline Brooks, Viola Stein, Donna Alston, Glennie Davis and Diane McVey. Deanna Tanner took charge of the bride's book.

Mr. and Mrs. Markham.

both of Belle Glade, are presently residing in Tampa where he is a student at Tampa Tech and she attends Hillsborough Community College.

Among the out-of-town guests attending the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. Tony Stech and Vian of Nova Scotia; Charles Anderson of Muskegon, Mich.; Mrs. Bette Hart, Merritt Island; Sue Barton and Debra Wright of Loxahatchee, and Mr. and Mrs. Jimmy Norwood, Keystone Heights.

Preceding the wedding, the bride was honored at two showers: a lingerie shower given by her attendants at the home of Mrs. Juan Baez, and a calling shower given by Mrs. John Schleicher. Co-hostesses were Eleanor Schleicher, Lois Stein, Helen Youngblood, Sandra Chambliss, Liz Duff, Iris Tanner, Louise Weathers, and Joann Connell.

A bridesmaids luncheon was hosted by Mrs. Hubert Anderson with guests preparing rice bags to be used at the wedding reception.

Mr. and Mrs. Markham entertained at a rehearsal supper for 35 guests.

Nu Kappa bazaar Sept. 27

Enjoy free coffee at the annual Nu Kappa bazaar to be held Saturday, Sept. 27, at the Belle Glade Civic Center from 10 a.m. until 2 p.m.

Craft items and home-baked foods will be featured and some lucky winner will take home a ceramic Christmas tree as a prize.

Garden Study Club meets

A talk on conserving energy by planting trees, shrubbery and groundcover was given by Loretta Hoddy, Agricultural Extension Service, for members of the Belle Glade Garden Study Club Friday.

Ten members attended the meeting at the home of Joan Thompson. Becky Wedgworth attended as a guest. Nancy Creech will be hostess to the group at its Oct. 10 meeting.

Mr. and Mrs. Markham.

Put a "Show-off" in its place.

Even when they're not the center of attention, these genuine Bell phones are something to talk about...that's why we call them "Show-offs".

A "Show-off" can add the accent that helps any room look put together.

To find the one that's right for you, experiment. Cut out the phones on this page. Then use a decorating magazine to mix and match different "Show-offs" with different room scenes. For more ideas, come to your Southern Bell PhoneCenter Store. In addition to all the different styles, we'll show you some exciting services.

So come on in. Once you've seen a real "Show-off," you'll find that a "Show-off's" place is in your home.

IT'S FOR YOU

Southern Bell

A six month warranty is included with your purchase of the Design Line housing. And since the working parts remain the property of Southern Bell, we will repair them at no charge. Transfer of Design Line working parts is restricted to areas served by Bell Telephone Companies.

Cancer Crusade planning begins

Plans for launching a Glades area Cancer Crusade were laid this week by a committee meeting at the Belle Glade Chamber of Commerce office. The crusade will attempt to raise a minimum $10,000 among Glades communities as part of the countywide goal of $800,000. Among those attending the planning session was Sandra Chamblee of Belle Glade, president of the county Cancer Society.

Russell named assistant principal

PAHOKEE - Antoine Russell, head football coach and physical education teacher at Pahokee Junior-Senior High School, has been named PHS assistant principal. Russell's appointment was announced by Doris Lane, school principal, who said that Russell will finish the season as football coach but future plans are not known. Russell replaces Ernest Thompson, now serving as principal of East Lake Middle School. Mrs. Lane, who has been acting principal at PHS, began the school year as principal. Formerly dean of girls, she began teaching home economics at PHS 25 years ago. Two other administrative appointments were announced by Mrs. Lane. Robert Fincannon, formerly on the faculty of Lakeshore Elementary School, has assumed the newly-created post of assistant principal in curriculum. Vera Garcia will serve as dean, having transferred from Glades Central High School where she was a physical education teacher and acting principal. Six new teachers have also joined the PHS faculty. Mrs. Lane said. They are: Margaret America, home economics and science; Joan Bagg, business education teacher who formerly taught at GCHS; Rebecca Bush, English; Deborah Boyd, exceptional child education; Rachael Gist, English; and Edith Cowan, media specialist transferred from GCHS. Miss Boyd and Mrs. Gist were former aides who have completed teacher certification requirements. The gifted children's class which had been meeting weekly is now held each day with Pam Campbell as teacher. Mrs. Lane said.

WHAT'S YOUR VERDICT

A new service involving the identification of plant diseases for vegetable growers and commercial representatives in the Glades area is being offered in a joint venture by the Palm Beach County Extension Service and the Agricultural Research and Education Center in Belle Glade.

Agent Ken Shuler encouraged growers to bring infected plants, at least three or four, to his office during working hours.

He said growers should notify him before the plant samples are removed from the field so specific arrangements can be made. He said the growers, if they can't leave the plants in Shuler's office, should take them to the packing house and keep them in cold storage until they could be picked up. He said he'll also need to know who to notify when the analysis is completed.

Shuler said the faculty at the AREC will assist as needed in plant disease diagnosis.

Deaf girl's rights
By ATTORNEY PAUL LEVINE
Copy News Service

Sandra, a bright 8-year-old, is totally deaf and needs a sign language interpreter to continue in public school. The school board refuses to provide the sign language expert, so Sandra's parents sue under the Federal Rehabilitation Act, asking the judge to order the special help.

You're the judge and jury. What's your verdict?

(1) Case dismissed, because Sandra should go to a private school for deaf children.

(2) Sandra gets the special help in public school only if her parents are willing to pay the costs.

(3) Sandra gets her interpreter paid for by the school board, because the law gives handicapped children the right to a kind of "affirmative action."

If you selected (3), your judgment is affirmed. Sandra wins the court ruling that an "appropriate education" for a deaf child includes a sign language interpreter. Federal law requires an "individualized education program" for handicapped students, the judge says.

(Based on a 1989 federal case in New York.)

Plant disease service offered

"Specific identification of bacterial and viral diseases he said, "can take several weeks and involve culture media and plant inoculations. However, general identification can usually be made within several days."

"I will continue to make field visits as needed," Shuler went on, "concerning disease problems which (growers) may have. Faculty at the AREC want to be kept informed of any new disease occurrences and any severe disease epidemics; however, the time involved in making large numbers of routine disease diagnoses diminishes their research efforts. Hopefully, by having Extension handle this matter, better service will result to the grower in both research and extension areas."

Survivors include his mother Mrs. Sarah Ridgely and stepfather, Prince Nelson of Pahokee, two daughters, Mrs. Sarah Williams of Ft. Lauderdale, Willie Mae Hines of Philadelphia, Penn., and Gertrude Styles of Miami, Fla. Ridgely of Pahokee, and Eddie Ridgely of Miami; four sons, Pauline Anderson and Gertrude Styles of Miami, Viola Smith and Annie Butler of Pahokee; two son-in-laws, Earl Ridgely of Miami, and Garfield Dewey of Waynesboro, Ga.

Burial was in the Port May Cemetery.

Taylor Funeral Home was in charge of arrangements.

Simonsons at Ag show

MOULTREE, GA. - What do Bernice and Robert Simonson of Pahokee, Doris and Donald Knox of Huntersville, N.C., Evelyn and Winston Kirby of Mechanicsville, Va., John E. Reiford of Phenix City, Ala., and John E. Reiford of Phenix City, Ala., have in common? Like thousands of other families from throughout the region, they all attend the second annual Sunbelt Agricultural Exposition near Moultrie, Ga., last year. This year they may return on Oct. 14-16 for the largest farm and consumer show in the Southeast.

The Simonsons brought their camper to the Sunbelt Expo last year and they were joined there by relatives from West Palm Beach and Anderson, Ala. "It was a really interesting place," Mrs. S.

monson recalled recently. "I don't know much about machines myself, but there is plenty of entertainment there for everyone. I liked the programs in the tents."

"Machines? Where else could farmers like her husband go to observe harvesting and village demonstrations with corn, soybeans, peanuts, cotton and bermudagrass hay? Sunbelt's equipment demonstrations claiming a world-wide reputation for this Southeastern agricultural exposition. Last year, more than 53 equipment manufacturers participated in the harvesting and village operations. The equipment demonstrations are coordinated by engineers at the University of Georgia College of Agriculture's Coastal Plant Experiment Station in Tifton.
